

THE TEFL ACADEMY
A WORLD OF OPPORTUNITIES

THE WORLD 2019 THE FACTBOOK

Welcome

Welcome to the world's first annual TEFL World Factbook, written by our team of expert TEFL trainers here at The TEFL Academy.

We have created this factbook in order to provide an up-to-date and accurate profile of the world's TEFL markets. With so much information available on the internet it can be difficult for TEFL teachers to know the full facts. Our team of researchers have pulled information from a variety of authoritative sources to create the definitive guide to teaching English around the world.

From the bustling favelas of Brazil to the hypermodern riches of Dubai, TEFL really is a world of opportunities. We have created a unique profile for over 100 countries that outline everything a TEFL teacher would need to know including average pay, living costs, working environments and even the weather!

We hope you enjoy discovering everything you need to know about teaching English around the world. If you have already started your TEFL journey, remember the real adventure is yet to begin!

Teaching English in Albania

MAJESTIC SNOW-CAPPED PEAKS, UNSPOILED RUGGED COASTLINE

Country Summary

Albania lies in the South East of Europe, surrounded by Montenegro, Kosovo, The Republic of Macedonia and Greece. The Albanian Alps provide a picturesque backdrop to Northern Albania, while numerous other mountain ranges across the country make for spectacular viewing. While the main language of Albania is unsurprisingly Albanian, English, French and Italian are routinely spoken across the country.

“Teaching in Albania is a highly respected profession.”

Albania is a particularly safe country with crime rates remaining low, it is expected that Albania will become an EU member in the next few years. Albania remains a relatively undiscovered jewel in the European crown. Whether, you want to relax on a secluded beach, float in the crystal clear waters of the ‘blue eye’ or visit a UNESCO World Heritage site, Albania has much to offer.

Teaching Opportunities

An ever-growing number of private language schools in the country have increased demand for native English speaking teachers. The Albanian capital, Tirana, is also home to numerous international schools for qualified teaching candidates.

As teaching is a desired profession in Albania there are strict requirements in order to enter the field. A University degree is required to teach with most candidates also requiring a TEFL certification. Citizens from EU member states are more likely to be granted a visa to teach in Albania, however it is not unheard of for working visas to be granted to non-EU citizens, though the process can be more time consuming.

Albania provides excellent opportunities for newly qualified and experienced teachers alike. Most teaching jobs in Albania will require teachers to secure their own accommodation, however cost of living in the country is inexpensive. Some international schools will offer a generous accommodation allowance, making these posts highly lucrative for the right candidate.

Teaching English in Algeria

A MEDITERRANEAN COASTLINE AND A SAHARAN DESERT INTERIOR

Country Summary

The largest country in Africa, Algeria is a country of UNESCO heritage sites, beautiful colonial architecture, ancient Roman ruins, gorgeous beaches and the Sahara Desert. The sheer size of the country means that there are various geographical regions in the country, from the coast to the mountains to the desert.

“Due to the economy and industry, there is a demand for English in the country.”

There are a range of activities that can be done to suit every traveller’s tastes: spend time in the capital city of Algiers, a quaint town with a touch of French colonialism; visit the city of Ouargla in the south of the desert, an ochre-coloured town known as ‘the golden key to the desert.’ You can also hike around the vast volcanic plateau of Tassili n’Ajjer; soak up the sun on the Turquoise Coast; tour the Sahara by camel; or visit the historic and holy town of Beni-Isguen.

Teaching Opportunities

There are teaching opportunities in Algeria, but salaries are quite low and resources minimal. There are positions in state schools, language centres, universities and international schools, with state schools offering the lowest salaries and international schools the highest. There are also a growing number of in-company language training positions aimed at the employees of various foreign companies. You need a degree for any paid positions and the higher your level of education, the better your salary will be.

A work visa must be organised before arrival in the country and you will need your employer to help you apply for employment authorisation issued by the Algerian Ministry of Labour.

Teaching English in Angola

Country Summary

Angola lies on the Southwestern coast of Africa to the North of Namibia. Historically a Portuguese colony, Angola gained independence in 1975. Portuguese remains the official language of Angola, however Bantu influences can be seen across the country. Civil unrest plagued the country until 2002 as the ramifications of achieving independence could be felt. Angola is well-known for its oil and diamond reserves, often being hailed ‘The Kuwait of Africa’. Angola has potential to be a very rich nation, however, currently remains a developing country.

The Angolan culture is heavily indicative of Portuguese influences to this day, with friendly locals and diverse tribal identities. Angola enjoys a laid back culture and lifestyle, greetings should never be rushed when meeting Angolan natives.

Angola offers a laid back approach to African life, with diverse cultural identities. It is the perfect base to experience a taste of Africa.

Teaching Opportunities

There are many different teaching opportunities in Angola, depending on what you are hoping to gain from the experience. English language schools and private tuition are available. There are some international schools, predominantly in the capital of Luanda, which offer excellent salary and benefits packages. Schools across Angola also benefit from native English teachers. Bear in mind Angola remains a developing nation and as such remuneration packages for local schools are likely to be considerably lower, but considerably more rewarding in terms of professional satisfaction.

There is a distinct shortage of qualified teachers in Angola, and as such you may find that a position can be secured without extensive qualifications, providing you can demonstrate a level of experience in a relevant field. Teaching adults in Angola is a priority for the current government, as literacy rates among Angolan adults remain low.

Teaching English in Argentina

INFLUENCES FROM EUROPE AND LATIN AMERICA

Country Summary

When hearing the word Argentina, it conjures up the seductive sounds of tango, and this is certainly true in every area of the country. Buenos Aires is not only alive through this dance, but through its inhabitants, in their stylish clothes, enjoying Argentinean cafe life against the exquisite back drop of coloured houses. Outside of Buenos Aires, Mendoza, famous for wines and the high peaks of the Andes, provides a stunning vista to while away your time. Patagonia also offers outdoor adventures on its wild plains.

“The demand to learn English is huge.”

Teaching Opportunities

This demand is largest in the business English sector, with many business professionals and executives looking for classes. This is particularly true in Buenos Aires and Cordoba. If you are not interested in teaching business English, then there are also more touristy areas where it is possible to find teaching opportunities. These include Bariloche, Mendoza, Marde, Plata and Salta.

Although a level 5 TEFL certificate is not a mandatory requirement, having this qualification will help you to secure higher paid work. This becomes important for teachers, when considering the cost of living. Many schools do not offer benefit packages as in the Middle East or Asia. The biggest expense that teachers face is accommodation. This question can be solved through shared living arrangements with other teachers. Despite the accommodation expense, teachers are able to have a good standard of living. The other issue is finding full-time work. Many teachers do not come to Argentina to make a fortune, as in some Asian or Middle Eastern countries. Instead, the draw for a TEFL teacher is to live and work here, in order to experience Argentina’s vibrant and colourful way of life.

Teaching English in Australia

AUSTRALIA, OZ, DOWN UNDER

Country Summary

What an intriguing country! From kangaroos to koalas, Bondi to barbecue, surfing to Sydney, Australia is a country of great beauty, interesting culture and fantastic opportunities.

Australia is a surfer's paradise, a heaven for the adventurous and a haven for culture lovers. One day you could be soaking up the sun on one of the many gorgeous beaches on the Gold Coast or the Sunshine Coast, the next you could be enjoying a tour of the Sydney Opera House. You could go road tripping to Margaret River to enjoy one of Australia's best food and wine destinations or you could be scuba diving on the Great Barrier Reef. And let's not forget the breath-taking sight of Uluru at sunset.

The history of the aboriginal people is an important part of this culture and is apparent in its traditional food, music and festivals.

“Sydney is a glamorous collusion of beaches, boutiques and bars.”

Teaching Opportunities

The TEFL sector is strong in Australia and there are plenty of job opportunities for teachers, especially in Sydney, Melbourne and Perth. However, rules and regulations are strict here, so you'll need to be qualified and preferably experienced. There are loads of private language schools and, due to visa restrictions for many nationalities, a constant flow of teachers, so there are always vacancies. However, the very nature of language schools means that you are paid an hourly rate and your hours may vary month to month.

The state runs the Adult Migrant Education Program and the Department of Technical and Further Education runs English courses for permanent Australian residents with non-English-speaking backgrounds. You might find yourself teaching children, adult migrants, indigenous people or international students from all over the world.

Teaching English in Austria

THE LAND IN THE MOUNTAINS

Country Summary

Austria is a country with a richly woven landscape of nature and culture. Well-known around the world from the epic film The Sound of Music, Austria conjures up the beauty of the Alps, alpine valleys and stunning lakes. This terrain is ideal for skiing, hiking, mountain biking and relaxing picnics. This is also a country steeped in culture. Images of classical composers, music and opera come together. Vienna, the centre of classical music and opera, has witnessed - in past generations - composers such as Beethoven, Mozart and Brahms, as well as being home to Klimt and Sigmund Freud.

In the present day, you can spend time in coffee houses and wine taverns, soaking up the magnificent architecture. Vienna is also home to an active contemporary art scene. Salzburg, on the other hand, boasts the world-renowned Altstadt complex, littered with domes and spires. Ancient castles are also found throughout the country.

Teaching Opportunities

Austria offers good salaries, but these are often of a temporary nature. Many teachers coming from within the EU actually become self-employed so that they can tutor privately. However, a licence is required for classes of 5 or more students together. For salaried employment, teachers also need a degree and a level 5 TEFL certificate to have a chance of finding work here. Those who are non-EU residents will find it very difficult to obtain a work visa, as is the case in most of Europe.

Salaried opportunities often offer a 20-25-hour teaching contract, but other benefits such as a flight and accommodation are generally not included. The cost of living is high, but so are the salaries. This means that teachers can enjoy a good standard of living.

Teaching English in Azerbaijan

TRIUMPHANT ARCHITECTURE, BREAK-TAKING LANDSCAPES

Country Summary

Azerbaijan lies in the Caucasus region, on the border of Europe and Asia, with parts in both continents. Its unique geography is only one of the interesting things the country has to offer. Home to the Caucasus Mountains, Azerbaijan offers dramatic landscapes and an unparalleled variety of local wildlife. The main languages spoken are Azerbaijani and Russian, however English is widely spoken and understood.

“Significant opportunities exist for teachers of varying levels of experience.”

Azerbaijan boasts an impressive history, with settlements dating back to the Stone Age, this is a country steeped in rich historical importance. This is truly the place where East meets West, with a multicultural populace influencing the stunning architecture and culture. Azerbaijan is an affluent country with scores of oil and gas revenue and a vast ex-patriate culture, making it the ideal base for foreign language teachers.

Teaching Opportunities

There are many different teaching opportunities in Azerbaijan, depending on what you are hoping to gain from the experience. The country requires teachers of all levels in their international schools, private schools and higher education establishments. Opportunities are also available for native English speakers to teach English in private tutoring sessions, foreign language schools and international schools.

Azerbaijan is a multicultural metropolis, opening up teaching opportunities across a range of disciplines. Teachers of English are required for children, students and for adult learners who are looking to develop their skills, particularly for use in the international business market. Azerbaijan can be difficult to obtain working visas for, with potential employees requiring a letter of invitation from a company or contact in the country. Those wishing to remain in the country for over 30 days must register with the local police within three days of arriving in the country.

Teaching English in Bahrain

AN OASIS IN A DRY AND HOT REGION

Country Summary

Bahrain is a small country in the Middle East, situated between Saudi Arabia and Qatar. Bahrain is a multicultural country with quite a liberal culture, compared to its neighbour Saudi Arabia. Alcohol is prohibited for Muslims and women, even foreign women, need to dress modestly. This means no shoulders, knees or cleavage on display in public. Homosexuality is also illegal and carries severe punishments. Those expats who respect the local customs are generally welcomed by Bahrainis.

“Good opportunities to make money.”

Although small in size, Bahrain’s fortune has been linked to its relationship with water. The pearls along its coast helped to make the country’s original fortunes. The name Bahrain means ‘two seas’ and the sea on its shores makes this country an attractive oasis in a dry and hot region.

Teaching Opportunities

There is a demand for native speakers. The learners are open, welcoming and eager to learn. The main areas in which to find EFL opportunities are in Manama, the capital city, and Riffa, the tourist area of the country. There are good opportunities for those who have a level 5 certificate and a degree. Most jobs can be found in private language schools and there are also good opportunities for those who wish to give private tuition.

It is important that you apply for a job beforehand due to the strict immigration laws. You will need a work visa to pass through immigration. Contracts are usually for 20-25 hours of teaching per week. Jobs can be found online or are sometimes advertised in the Guardian in the UK. The advantage of working in Bahrain is the high tax-free salary and the benefit packages that come with the job. These include reimbursed airfares, furnished accommodation and health insurance.

Teaching English in Bangladesh

WATERWAYS LIKE SUPERHIGHWAYS

Country Summary

Bangladesh is not the most obvious destination for TEFL teachers in comparison to its neighbours in South East Asia because the majority of its teachers speak fluent English, but there are still opportunities in this interesting country.

“Bangladesh is south Asia’s greenest jewel.”

Bangladesh is one of the most densely populated countries in the world. At first glance it is poor and dirty, but you will find some hidden surprises if you stay long enough. The capital city of Dhaka showcases events of historical significance of the country with its forts, palaces and monuments while Chittagong is the place to go to experience the ethnic diversity of the country, not to mention its beautiful coastline. You can also hang out at the longest beach in the world (125 km), catch up with the emerging surf scene in Sonadia Island, wander around the world’s largest mangrove forest, visit tea estates or go on a boat tour in the hopes of seeing one of the world’s few remaining Royal Bengal tigers.

Teaching Opportunities

In Bangladesh, there are international schools which offer paid or volunteer positions and a few language schools like the British Council where you could try find a teaching job. Most teaching opportunities are in the big cities of Dhaka and Chittagong.

A FOOD LOVER'S DREAM - A BEER LOVER'S HEAVEN

Country Summary

Officially known as the Kingdom of Belgium (due to its constitutional monarchy), this small country borders France, Germany, Luxembourg and the Netherlands. Belgium is divided into two halves: the northern part influenced by the Dutch, speaks Flemish. The southern part predominantly speaks French, and the people in this region are often referred to as Walloons. When deciding on where you want to live and work in Belgium, you will have to choose which culture interests you the most, and which language you would most like to learn.

“The students are eager to learn, which makes Belgium a comfortable place to teach.”

The capital, Brussels, is home to many international organisations. The European Parliament, the European Union, and other multinational institutions such as NATO are all situated here. Bruges, another World Heritage site, is also a splendid example of Gothic architecture. Apart from architecture, Belgium would be incomplete without mentioning the many varieties of Belgian beer and chocolate, waiting to be savoured by those who come to live here.

Teaching Opportunities

The TEFL scene, as in many European countries, is competitive. EFL jobs start mainly in September or October and again in January. Many schools in Belgium prefer that you interview in person for any vacant position. Once again, it is very difficult to find a job if you are a non-EU citizen. This means that teachers who wish to be considered for jobs in this country need to be EU citizens.

The main places to find work in Belgium are Brussels, Antwerp, Ghent and Bruges. There are opportunities in language schools as well as universities. To obtain a job, a degree and a level 5 TEFL certificate are essential. The cost of living is also high, and flights and accommodation are generally not included in your contract.

BELIZE IS A TINY COUNTRY IN CENTRAL AMERICA - IT HAS A POPULATION OF JUST 300 000

Country Summary

Belize is situated between Mexico and Guatemala, but it was a British colony until 1981 and so maintains a feel for its colonial past. The Belize people are warm and welcoming, and you will feel at home here. There is a large community of expats here who come to Belize from Canada, the US and Europe to retire.

Belize is different in that it has a rich cultural heritage while also providing visitors with many different activities to keep busy. One of the most popular activities in Belize is to visit the many Mayan ruins and ancient temples. Horse riding, snorkelling and cave exploring can also be done, as well as ziplining over the rainforest. Belize has over 400 tropical islands with gorgeous white sand beaches and turquoise waters where you can go if you are looking to lose yourself for a while. Especially if you're interested in fishing, Belize is the place to be, with some of the best places for saltwater fly-fishing in the world.

In terms of history, Belize has a lot to offer: many archaeological Mayan ruins, stone temples, excavated tombs and natural caves. One of the most famous sights in Belize is the Lamanai ruins, where you can hike to the tallest Mayan pyramids, surrounded by monkeys and birds.

“With one foot planted in the Central American jungles and the other dipped in the Caribbean Sea.”

Teaching Opportunities

The official language of Belize is English but Spanish and Creole are also spoken. You should be able to find work in public or private schools or language schools. Education in Belize is undertaken in English, so this is a good location for teachers to develop their skills. You need to have a degree to teach in Belize as the government is trying to make teaching a priority. Teachers are also expected to participate in extracurricular activities, as well as the usual teaching hours.

MOUNTAINS, MONASTERIES AND MAGIC

Country Summary

Can you imagine a country which bases its success on happiness rather than economic indicators? Bhutan is that country. A simple, peaceful country nestled between India and China, Bhutan has Gross National Happiness as its central governing principle, meaning that more emphasis is placed on happiness than economic prosperity.

Virtually untouched by the modern world, Bhutan has many natural sights to offer, with very little pollution and very few tourists. In fact, it costs tourists $250 a day for a visa to visit the country, so it's not surprising that not many people are willing to pay the price and cross the border.

Bhutan is a country of dramatic landscapes. Magnificent monasteries hug the edges of cliffs, beautiful palaces line riverbanks and breath-taking hikes will give you extraordinary views of mountain ranges and valleys.

“Virtually untouched by the modern world, Bhutan has many natural sights to offer.”

Teaching Opportunities

There has been a recent movement to educate the population in Bhutan with new schools being developed and a national plan of educational reform being put forward. For this reason, there are English teaching positions available in Bhutan, though not as many as in neighbouring countries.

You could find a position in a government school, a monastic school or an adult literacy school. Some of these are paid positions but the majority are volunteer positions. It is necessary to get a job offer before arrival in the country in order to get the appropriate visa and avoid paying the exorbitant tourist visa fee.

RUGGED AND REMOTE BEAUTY

Country Summary

The country boasts amazing natural wonders, such as the Andes, the Amazon, and the stark salt lakes set against the rich blue sky. For those who love outside adventure and exploration, they will feel at home in this country. Bolivia also boasts one of the most diverse populations in the Latin American region, due to the sheer number of indigenous groups. The capital city La Paz, situated at approximately 4,050m above sea level, combines this diversity with a combination of modern, Spanish and indigenous architecture. This is also reflected in language.

“The country boasts amazing natural wonders, such as the Andes, the Amazon.”

In the same way as other countries in Latin America, football is an all-consuming passion, as well as the inhabitants' love for animals. This is reflected in the nature reserves and zoos found throughout the country.

Teaching Opportunities

Bolivia is still a relatively poor country, which means that it is similar to the way Cambodia was about 10 years ago. This means that the number of volunteer opportunities seem to outweigh paid work. For those interested in teaching as a volunteer, it is important to remember that even though accommodation might be provided, your airfare and daily spending money will not be paid for by your organisation. You will, therefore, need to have savings in order to come to the country. Volunteer job opportunities can be found through NGO organisations that are based in Bolivia. Despite the number of volunteer opportunities, recently there has started to be more opportunity for paid work. These opportunities can be found in La Paz, Cochabamba, El Alto and Santa Cruz. The salaries are not huge, but the cost of living is low, so you should be able to cover your expenses while living there.

ENIGMATIC LANDSCAPES

Country Summary

A landlocked country with a population of just over 2 million people, Botswana is one of Africa's most stable countries and one of the fastest growing economies in the world. In terms of big cities, Botswana does not have much to offer but you don't come to Botswana to experience city life. In the south is the capital of Gaborone, which offers museums, diamond mines and nightlife, but that's about all the country has for city-dwellers.

“These jobs are usually well-paid and include end-of-contract bonuses.”

One of the best safari destinations in the world, Botswana boasts the Okavango Delta - a UNESCO World Heritage Site - the Chobe National Park and the Kalahari Desert on its list of must-visit attractions. Botswana can offer you all the animal experiences you could ever dream of. Chobe National Park has one of the largest game concentrations in Africa. It is especially well known for its huge elephant population but it is also possible to see lions, zebra, wild dogs, cheetahs, leopards and hyena. A visit to the Central Kalahari Game Reserve might give you a glimpse of the famous black-maned lions.

Teaching Opportunities

The majority of teaching positions in Botswana are volunteer positions, but it is possible to find a job in one of the universities. These jobs are usually well-paid and include end-of-contract bonuses, medical insurance and several weeks of holidays.

Volunteer opportunities are available all year-round in Botswana but for positions in schools the main hiring season is November and December for a January start to the academic year. Volunteer positions are flexible on your qualifications but working in a school may require a bachelor's degree and working in a university will require a master's degree.

FORMIDABLE BOOMING AND DEVELOPING ECONOMY

Country Summary

Brazil is by far the largest country in the Latin American block. With its formidable booming and developing economy, Brazil is tipped to be one of the main world leaders in the future. Brazil is a country of multicultural fusion, emanating from its mixed history. This country combines European, African, Native American, as well as Japanese and Arabic influences in its food, architecture, music and culture. This creates a rich and colourful landscape for the visitor to explore. The people are also stylish, friendly and charming. Portuguese is the language of Brazil and one worth learning during your stay.

“Brazil is tipped to be one of the main world leaders in the future.”

The natural landscape of the country is just as rich as its cultural heritage. From spectacular beaches, to the Amazon rainforest, to the largest waterfall in the world, Iguaza Falls, right to the wetlands in Pantanal, and the Mata Atlantica (Atlantic forest), there is always something to see and explore.

Teaching Opportunities

The demand for business English is huge, but there are also opportunities to teach in language schools and state institutions. For state institutions, you need to have qualifications to teach. In other sectors this is not a prerequisite. In some cases, prior experience and a level 5 TEFL certificate can increase the amount of salary you receive. Benefits packages, such as accommodation and flights are rarely offered.

It is possible to find jobs for Brazil online, but many companies prefer that you are in the country for interviews. Work visas are also difficult and lengthy to obtain. Many teachers work on a 6-month tourist visa and then leave the country for a day in order to renew it. The students in Brazil are one of the highlights of teaching here. With their enthusiastic, energetic and motivated demeanour, they are a delight to teach.

SOUL-STIRRING MOUNTAINS RIVAL GOLDEN BEACHES

Country Summary

Bulgaria is an up and coming Eastern European country, which shares southern borders with Greece and Turkey. Bulgaria is a Balkan nation with diverse terrain, from the ski resorts of western Bulgaria to the sun-drenched beaches of the east. Bulgaria benefits from coastal access to the Black Sea to the east, with resorts such as Sunny Beach and Bourgas seeing a recent rise in popularity with tourists. Due to the rise in tourism, English is routinely spoken in Bulgaria, particularly in larger towns and cities. There is demand for English teachers from all walks of life, as tourism brings much needed income and the ability to converse with English speaking tourists is advantageous.

“There is demand for English teachers from all walks of life.”

Teaching Opportunities

The ever-growing number of private language schools in the country have increased demand for native English speaking teachers. The Bulgarian capital, Sofia, is also home to numerous international schools for qualified teaching candidates.

Positions in international schools in Bulgaria are highly sought after and as such entry requirements are strict. A University degree is required to teach with most candidates also requiring a TEFL certification. Citizens from EU member states are more likely to be granted a visa to teach in Bulgaria, however it is not unheard of for working visas to be granted to non-EU citizens, though the process can be more time consuming.

Bulgaria provides excellent opportunities for newly qualified and experienced teachers alike. Most teaching jobs in Bulgaria will require teachers to secure their own accommodation, however cost of living in the country is inexpensive. Some international schools will offer a generous accommodation allowance, making these posts highly lucrative for the right candidate.

Teaching English in Cambodia

THE KINGDOM OF WONDER

Country Summary

Sandwiched between Laos, Thailand and Vietnam, Cambodia is a place to visit for those who want to experience a slower pace of life. Home to the centre of the ancient Khmer empire, which ruled these three neighbours, the ancient city Angkor Wat is a reminder of Cambodia's former importance in the region. Phnom Penh is the capital city, and indigenous and French architectural influences can still be seen throughout the city. Over two million people live here.

“Cambodia is a place to visit for those who want to experience a slower pace of life.”

The country's recent economic boom is largely responsible for this. Emerging from great hardship, the people of Cambodia will amaze you with their determination, optimism and friendliness, as well as their work ethic.

Teaching Opportunities

This new emerging economy means that there is a demand and need for English. Cambodia in the last couple of years has also attracted attention from some of the larger EFL publishers and players, who are now sponsoring conferences in the country and investing in the EFL market. In the past, TEFL was a volunteer industry. However, the current investment climate highlights a more commercial turn in EFL provision. This means that while volunteer positions still exist, it is also possible to find paid work.

In Cambodia, having a degree is not a requirement to secure employment, but a level 5 TEFL certificate is becoming more of a necessity for the good jobs both in state and local private institutions. Teaching hours, generally, range from approximately 25 to 35 hours per week depending on the institution. You are usually only paid for teaching hours and not for preparation time. The majority of TEFL jobs are still in Phnom Penh, where a large expat community resides. It is also possible to find work in the surrounding areas.

Teaching English in Cameroon

ROLLING PLANTATIONS, MOUNTAINSIDE MAJESTY

Country Summary

Known as “Africa in miniature”, Cameroon has varied geography and wildlife - in Cameroon you can find just about anything you would in all other African countries combined. The scenery includes savannah, rainforest, black- and white-sand beaches and even volcanoes, while in terms of wildlife there are gorillas, monkeys, rhinos, elephants, cheetahs and whales. In fact, Cameroon boasts more than 400 species of mammals, 165 species of birds and over 8,000 species of plants.

“Due to the economy and industry, there is a demand for English in the country.”

Cameroon has been a German colony and a French and British mandate but has been independent since 1972. Both French and English are the official languages but almost 250 indigenous languages are also spoken, making Cameroon the most linguistically diverse country in the world. Culturally Cameroon is a melting pot, too, being home to both Muslims and Christians while the Baka pygmies have been living undisturbed in the Cameroonian rainforests since paleolithic times.

Teaching Opportunities

The majority of teaching positions in Cameroon are volunteer positions but if you have a teaching qualification you can teach in one of the private international schools. Students have a reputation for being highly motivated and dedicated to learning English.

In order to be granted a work permit from the Minister for Labour and Social Security, you need a contract with your employer, so your job needs to be organised before entering the country.

Teaching English in Canada

A TRULY STAGGERING LAND OF VAST PLAINS, HUGE LAKES, ICONIC MOUNTAIN RANGES & BIG CITIES

Country Summary

Canada is a country that offers everything: big cities, the great outdoors, international culture. There are not many countries which can boast such a vast, untouched landscape - Canada is the second-largest country in the world and a lot of it is undeveloped.

“Canada is more than its hulking-mountain, craggy-coast good looks.”

Though there are so many places to visit in Canada, there are a few that stand out. Halifax is known for its historic beauty with beautiful architecture. Prince Edward Island is a quaint little town made famous by Anne of Green Gables. Toronto is Canada's biggest city and is a good cosmopolitan city for tourists to enjoy. Vancouver is a vibrant, modern city where you can spend the day on the beach or on the ski slopes. Finally, Montreal in the east is uniquely francophone and known for its maple syrup.

For the outdoorsy types, there are opportunities for whale and bear watching in the nature reserves. A visit to Niagara Falls is a must for everyone, but especially honeymooners! Culturally speaking, there are many different music, theatre, literature and film festivals throughout the year.

Canadians are warm, friendly and generous and testament to this is the number of foreigners living in their cities. So, if you're looking for a safe, clean country to live in that offers outdoor as well as cultural activities, consider teaching in Canada.

Teaching Opportunities

English and French are the two official languages in Canada, but only about a quarter of the population are fully bilingual. Subsequently there are many language schools around the country offering both English and French lessons to Canadians and immigrants, but teaching opportunities are better in Vancouver and Montreal. As is the case with all language schools, teachers are paid an hourly wage and hours may vary. As with the US, getting a work visa is not easy and there is competition for positions from Canadian teachers.

Teaching English in Chile

SOARING PEAKS MEETING RUSHING RIVERS

Country Summary

Although Chile geographically has a small width, this long narrow strip of land stretches from the snowy heights of the Andes mountain peaks right down to the Pacific Ocean. Despite the distances involved, Chile is easy to get around and explore. Chile is a hiker's-paradise.

“Many varied teaching options available”

The country's geographical landscape contains mountains, the arid Atacama Desert, volcanoes, fertile valleys and lush forests, as well as glacial fields. Basing yourself in Chile means that if you want to travel to its neighbouring countries, you can easily cross its 300 km width and visit Peru, Bolivia and Argentina. The official language of Chile is Spanish. It is highly recommended that you learn some basic Spanish before arriving in the country, so that you can get around and communicate.

The people of Chile are also easy to get along with. In this country, it is essential to go with the flow and enjoy the slow pace. A favourite Chilean pastime is to have long lingering meals and table conversation. Chilean wine is also worth savouring and exploring, as Chile has one of the largest wine productions in the world. There are many large and small vineyards to visit. Chile has had a long and distinguished association with the FIFA World Cup. This sport brings out Chilean's passion. It permeates into everyday life, with Chileans practising the sport all over the country.

Teaching Opportunities

There are many varied teaching options available. These include language institutes, high schools and colleges. Business English is also in high demand, with company employees taking private or group classes. The capital city, Santiago, is the political, economic and cultural hub of the country, so many of the opportunities are situated here. There are, however, some opportunities in the Patagonian south. Many adults are also learning English for their careers or for travel.

A level 5 TEFL certificate is highly recommended, if you are considering working here. Jobs can be found through agents when searching from abroad or within the country, for those wishing to work in high schools and colleges. When finding a contracted job, although there are few benefits attached to it, under Chilean law you are entitled to 3 weeks paid holiday. The cost of living is high here and your salary will allow you to live, but not to save. To combat this situation many teachers give private classes.

Teaching English in China

METROPOLIS MEETS ANCIENT EMPIRE

Country Summary

Sitting on an enormous land mass, China is home to a vast array of cultures and ethnic groups, all united by the main language of Mandarin Chinese. The ultra-modern Eastern side of the country, symbolised by Beijing and Shanghai, is not the only part to explore. The striking hills of Gualin, the archaeological discoveries of such sites as the Terracotta Warriors in Xian, and the snaking structure of the Great Wall of China are bound to take your breath away. China is also at the original heart of the ancient Silk Road. There is so much to see and experience of this culture, that after a year in China, you will only have just begun to scratch the surface.

“After a year in China, you will only have just begun to scratch the surface”

China is an interesting blend of Confucianism, mixed with the ideas of modern communism, which is driving the country to its superpower status. Daily life is rich in colour, with parks full of people and groups littered in various corners, practising the waltz or tango under the trees, while others practise Tai Chi or sing in the open spaces. On the streets old men sit and play Chinese chess, while others have their hair cut. Kites fly high above the rivers and restaurants are full of customers enjoying the varied dishes that Chinese cuisine brings. The Chinese language is also fascinating. Each character carries with it a story and the history of this ancient culture.

Teaching Opportunities

Although there is a recent move by the Chinese government to reduce the significance of the weight of English in university entrance examinations, there is still a high demand for English within the country. There are many wealthy families who wish to send their children abroad to an English-speaking destination for their university education. English teaching jobs are plentiful in the private and public sector, but teachers must research each job carefully as there are many agents operating from China who try to use foreigners in scams or are not paying what has been initially advertised.

Chinese students are interested in learning English for business and academic and general English classes are also in demand. Such a large population also brings with it large class sizes. These can range from 30 in private language schools to 65 or 70 students per class. While the high figures can seem daunting, China still is a traditional culture, and students are often highly disciplined and respectful of their teachers.

Teaching English in Colombia

SCENERY IS STUNNING AND THE PACE OF LIFE IS SLOW

Country Summary

For every TEFL teacher considering living and working in Colombia, there is one extremely important word that comes to mind: safety. Colombia has been known as one of the most violent and unsafe areas to live and work in the world, due to civil war, drug wars and open armed conflict in the streets of Bogota. The UK Foreign Office still has some recommendations in place about where residents of the UK should and should not travel. This is mainly in rural areas, particularly bordering Panama, Venezuela and Ecuador, where armed groups are still active. Therefore, if you are considering Colombia, it is important that you regularly keep up with the UK Foreign Office's advice.

“Colombia has become one of the newest tourist destinations in the last couple of years.”

Colombia, acting as a bridge between Central and South America, experiences extremely different climates. Bogota is cold in the north, but Colombia also has beautiful warm Caribbean beaches, where the scenery is stunning, and the pace of life is slow. The people of Colombia are warm and friendly. They enjoy socialising and drinking and are generally laid-back in their attitude to life. Culturally, Colombia also boasts the award-winning writer Gabriel Garcia Marquez, who is known all over the world. The language of Colombia is Spanish.

Teaching Opportunities

With the country's tourism industry opening to the outside world, there are more and more opportunities for native English teachers. Although, there are private institutions employing teachers, one popular option is the bilingual high schools found in the capital. Often rich families send their children to these schools. Medellin, famous for fashion and architecture, is also becoming a popular TEFL destination. Teachers are generally required to have a degree, but for better positions a level 5 TEFL certificate is highly recommended.

The working week in Colombia generally consists of 6 days, from Monday to Sunday. The cost of living is low, so working in Colombia will provide you with a comfortable lifestyle, but no major savings to take back home to your country. To boost their income, many teachers in Colombia give private lessons. Finding job opportunities in online forums is possible, but the better positions can be found by looking from within the country. The best times to look for jobs are from November for the new academic term.

Teaching English in Costa Rica

TROPICAL RAINFORESTS & ACTIVE VOLCANOES

Country Summary

Compared with some of its neighbours in Latin America, Costa Rica is a relatively small country. However, this does not mean that the EFL teacher should overlook some of the country's main highlights. As with its neighbours, Costa Rica boasts beautiful nature and a wide variety of geographical features. The visitor to Costa Rica can easily cross the country to experience the Pacific or the beaches of the Caribbean. It has tropical rainforests, active volcanoes and is home to some of the most beautiful and colourful animals on Earth; the toucan is a native to Costa Rica. Interestingly, Costa Rica, despite its size, holds claim to 6% of the Earth's biodiversity.

“Costa Rica, despite its size, holds claim to 6% of the Earth's biodiversity.”

On another note, Costa Rica also should not be overlooked, due to the fact that it is the most peaceful and stable of all Central American countries, both in terms of politics and economy. It has an impressive and efficient infrastructure, which makes it a great place to live as well as a great base to explore other corners of Central and Latin America. Costa Rica neighbours Nicaragua in the north, and Panama in the south east. Coupled with the friendly and laid-back attitude of its residents, Costa Rica is well worth considering as a job option. The official language of Costa Rica is Spanish.

Teaching Opportunities

The stability of Costa Rica also means that it has an impressive educational system. The population has a high educational level and seeks English as a way to improve their career opportunities. In order to teach in Costa Rica, applicants generally need to have a 4-year bachelor's degree in any subject. If you are applying directly from the UK or for private language institutes, then you will also need to have a level 5 TEFL certificate. Having said this, many companies prefer to hire people who are in the country. It seems that if you are willing to make the flight to Costa Rica, you will be rewarded with a job. Teachers can show up on the door step of prospective schools and request a face-to-face interview.

If you are planning to work in the private sector, then hiring happens all year-round. However, if you are considering applying for schools or universities, the recruitment season is slightly different. The main school changeover is in December, when the school year is finishing and again in January when the school year begins. This means that schools begin looking for teachers from October to December for January hiring. Most employers are reluctant to pay for a work visa until you have completed a year with them.

SAPPHIRE WATERS IN THE SHADE OF ANCIENT WALLED TOWNS

Country Summary

It is no secret that tourism is booming in Croatia, but just because all your friends and family have been here and got the t-shirts doesn't mean you shouldn't experience this amazing country yourself - there are many reasons why Croatia is so popular.

Croatia is a country of more than a thousand islands and plenty of sunshine, making this a holiday destination of choice for many travellers. Then, many people come here to see the Roman ruins and the historic architecture such as the Diocletian Palace in Split and the walled city of Dubrovnik. In fact, Croatia has seven UNESCO World Heritage Sites for you to enjoy, all within close distance of one another.

But of course, no visit to Croatia would be complete without a visit to the stunning white sand beaches of the Dalmatian coast or island hopping in the summer, including a stop off at the island of Pag, which is the one of the biggest party areas in Europe with bars and discos operating 24 hours a day during the summer. So, whether it's history and architecture or sun and summer fun you are looking for, Croatia is where you will find it.

Teaching English in Czech Republic

PRAGUE IS ONE OF THE WORLD'S MOST BEAUTIFUL AND CULTURED CITIES

Country Summary

The Czech Republic (formerly Czechoslovakia) is a small country in the heart of Europe. It's a country of castles, picturesque villages and beer. Since the fall of communism in 1989, the Czech Republic has grown into a top European tourist destination. People from all over the world come here to discover the home of beer, visit beer gardens and, of course, drink beer.

“For a country that’s only been around since 1993, the Czech Republic does a fine job of showcasing.”

The Czech Republic has a fascinating history, which can still be experienced. Prague is the capital and is well known for its historical centre where you can see the Astronomical Clock and walk across Charles Bridge. Bohemian Paradise is an area known for its rock formations and castles. Twelve UNESCO Heritage Sites have been recognised in the Czech Republic, so you can imagine that there are many cultural attractions to explore. North of the city of Brno you can spend some time in nature and explore the Macocha Caves. For such a historical country it is interesting that the nightlife in the Czech Republic is world-famous, especially in Prague and the student town of Brno. Socialising over a beer is, of course, popular but there are many bars and clubs where you can dance the night away. On a quieter note, there are many music events and art galleries to satisfy your cultural cravings.

Teaching Opportunities

With the development of the economy has come a need and a demand for English so teaching opportunities are plenty. Aside from finding work in the state schools, there are numerous language schools, or you could come over for a quick summer camp. Teaching freelance is also an option in order to teach Business English in-house for a company. Degrees are generally preferred but you could possibly find a job without one in the smaller towns in the provinces. EU passport holders are preferred to avoid the process of obtaining a work permit.

Teaching English in Dominican Republic

STUNNING NATURAL SCENERY WITH A DASH OF COLONIAL ARCHITECTURE

Country Summary

The Dominican Republic is the most-visited destination in the Caribbean boasting gorgeous beaches, lush green forests and colourful colonial cities. It is a great destination for adventure lovers with swamps, mountain ranges, tropical rainforests, sugar plantations and even deserts to explore. It's the top golf destination in the Caribbean. From above-ground adventures, underwater activities or safari trips, the Dominican Republic has a lot to offer.

For the more culturally minded, colonial architecture can be found in the capital of Santo Domingo, while there are numerous small villages to walk around. The people of the Dominican Republic know how to enjoy themselves and there are many celebrations and festivals to enjoy throughout the year. If you can dance (or enjoy trying), you should take some time to learn the merengue.

Teaching Opportunities

Tourism is a growing industry and there is a growing demand for English - with tourism comes a need for English. You can look for opportunities in schools, language schools and universities with English programmes. Most positions will be located in Santo Domingo and Santiago. A degree is required, and a level of Spanish and teaching experience is not essential but would be beneficial. The salaries are not particularly high, but they are more than adequate to live comfortably. Schools may also provide accommodation or reimburse you for your flights, so while salaries may not be much more than the cost of living, it is much more manageable if you do not have to pay for accommodation. Having said that, the Dominican Republic is not a place to go to save money but rather to enjoy the interesting culture and great location.

HOME TO THE WORLD HERITAGE SITES OF QUITO (THE CAPITAL) AND CUENCA

Country Summary

Despite being small, Ecuador sits on the Equator and has a heritage that is hard to rival. Home to the World Heritage Sites of Quito (the capital) and Cuenca, along with the interwoven Spanish colonial heritage, Ecuador is a rich mixture of indigenous and European cultures. The indigenous textiles and the colour of the Andean villages permeate Ecuadorian society.

“For people who love hiking and the great outdoors, Ecuador is for you.”

Apart from its heritage, this country also comprises places of extreme natural beauty. Part of the Amazon rainforest can be found in the country. The Galapagos Islands, the place that inspired Darwin's Theory of Evolution, is also located here. Wonders such as the giant tortoises and the world's only marine iguanas await those who make the short plane ride to the islands. For people who love hiking and the great outdoors, Ecuador is for you. The language spoken in Ecuador is Spanish, and Quichua and Shuar are also officially used, along with a few other indigenous languages.

Teaching Opportunities

The TEFL sector in Ecuador is a steady market, with a level 5 TEFL certificate being seen as the most basic requirement. The main hiring times are in February and March, and July and August. There are opportunities in both private and state institutions. There are also job possibilities in universities in Quito, Cuenca and Guayaquil. For private language schools the majority of the work can be found in the capital, Quito. Teachers are generally required to teach 25-30 hours a week. The remuneration is not generally high. This means that this is not a place to earn lucrative contracts, but the price of living is relatively low. Very few positions offer benefits, meaning that you will be responsible for your own accommodation, flight and health insurance. Many teachers also supplement their salaries by giving private lessons to children and adults.

Most of the prospective employers do not generally accept teachers who are coming from abroad, unless they are in the country for face-to-face interviews. This means that you will need to supply the money for your own airfare and have savings for the first few months while you look for a job. Many employers, some unscrupulous, will try not to sign a contract with you or provide a work visa. This will leave you in a very precarious position. It is recommended you try to hold out for a job that is prepared to sign a contract with you.

NO PLACE HAS THE MAGIC, MYSTERY AND PLEASURES OF EGYPT

Country Summary

Egypt is a fusion of the Middle East, Europe and Africa. Many visitors are drawn to this country, due to the history of the pharaohs and the pyramids of ancient Egypt. No visit is complete without taking in the sites of the Valley of the Kings or visiting the impressive collections in the Museum of Cairo. Egypt also boasts the Nile River as well as the Nile valley region and the Red Sea. It is home to the ancient city of Alexandria, and incredibly is almost 90% covered by the sands of the Sahara Desert that is located right in the middle of the country. The rich cultural environment of this country will delight anyone who decides to live here.

“Egypt is also an ideal location for those who wish to travel.”

The people of Egypt are friendly and helpful, as long as you show respect to their customs. Egypt is a Muslim country and visitors need to act more conservatively in their behaviour and dress. Women need to avoid showing their knees, shoulders and cleavage in public. Egypt has since 2011 gone through a dramatic political change, particularly in Cairo where many people took to the streets to demand change. Egypt saw its long-term president overthrown and is now heading into new uncharted waters. It is important to keep up with these changes by reading the advice from the Foreign Office.

Teaching Opportunities

EFL students in Egypt are motivated and energetic. There are many opportunities to teach English. These range from private language institutions to elementary, middle and high school in the state system. Business English is also an in-demand EFL sector. To work in Egypt teachers generally need a level 5 TEFL certificate. Teachers are expected to teach 20-25 hours per week. If applying outside of the country, contracts often come with benefits packages. These can include your flight, accommodation, visa assistance and health insurance. It is possible to find jobs on online forums or in the Guardian and the Times Educational Supplement in the UK. It is extremely important that when applying for a job with an Egyptian employer you check out their credentials, as some schools do not provide the conditions they have promised. If you are able to secure a job with benefits, then you will live comfortably in Egypt because the cost of living is low.

Teaching English in El Salvador

SERENE WATERS AND REMARKABLE COLONIAL ARCHITECTURE

Country Summary

El Salvador is a small Central American country, between Guatemala and Honduras. It has a long and turbulent history in its relations with its neighbouring countries and the US, but after 12 years of armed conflict a peace treaty was signed in 1992 and the country is finally at peace. It has a tropical climate and though it experiences hurricanes and earthquakes, these have left the country with a certain untouched feel and a very dramatic landscape.

El Salvador is known for its seafood and surfing, but let’s not forget the quirky little fishing villages, colonial towns, historical Mayan sites or the unspoilt beaches. Water sports are the norm - paddle boating, water-skiing, wakeboarding - as is soaking in hot springs. It’s even possible to go volcano hiking. After a day spent outdoors, what better way to spend an evening than enjoying the local nightlife?

Teaching Opportunities

Spanish is the official language of El Salvador, though many people speak English and a small percentage of the population speak Izalco. El Salvador is undergoing serious development with increasing industrialisation and has a resulting booming tourism industry. Consequently, with this development comes a need for English. If you have a teaching degree it’ll be possible for you to find employment at a private or international school, otherwise there are numerous language schools where you can find teaching positions; most of these can be found in San Salvador. Another interesting employment opportunity lies in the numerous US call centres which can be found here, and which are often looking for teachers to teach their employees English. El Salvador is known for its ecotourism and there are numerous volunteering opportunities in this sector. Volunteers can look after dogs, care for turtles or teach local farmers about organic farming.

Teaching English in Ethiopia

A BEAUTIFUL COUNTRY BLESSED WITH A PEERLESS HISTORY AND FABULOUS WILDLIFE

Country Summary

One of the oldest countries in the world, Ethiopia is the only African country to have never been colonised. Ethiopia is a nature-lovers paradise, with numerous opportunities for trekking, hiking in the mountains and watching wildlife on the lakes - including pelicans, hippos and crocodiles.

“Due to the economy and industry, there is a demand for English in the country.”

Besides nature and wildlife, Ethiopia is known for its dramatic landscapes. The Danakil Depression is one of the harshest and hottest landscapes on earth, complete with volcanic craters and lava lakes. If you'd prefer somewhere a bit cooler, you can take a hike in the Simen Mountains, go white-water rafting on the Omo River or visit waterfalls on the Blue Nile.

Ethiopia is culturally interesting too with many festivals throughout the year, involving music, dancing and, of course, food. Many of these festivals relate to the major religion of the country: Christianity. In fact, the oldest Christian church in the world can be found in the northern town of Lalibela, where churches were carved out of rock. And let's not forget that Ethiopia gave the greatest gift to mankind: coffee - so why not take a tour of the coffee forests and learn how to drink it in the traditional Ethiopian way?

Teaching Opportunities

There are many teaching opportunities for EFL teachers in Ethiopia, both voluntary and paid. You are more likely to find a volunteer position in a small town or village than an urban area as the majority of the population is located in rural areas, but the paid positions are likely to be in the cities, such as Addis Ababa.

The school year starts in September, so vacancies will be advertised in the months preceding then. You will need to apply for a job before you enter Ethiopia as you will need your employer to assist in getting a visa before arrival. The average salary may not seem like much, but it is more than enough relative to the cost of living.

Teaching Requirements

Degree Requirement	None
Typical Contract Length	Variable
Peak Hiring Seasons	July - September
Visa Info	Work visa
Typical Students	Children
Average Monthly Cost of Living	3,000 - 4,000 ETB (110 - 150 GBP)
Average Monthly Salary	5,000 - 7,000 ETB (180 - 250 GBP)
Type of Jobs	Paid positions with private language schools can mostly be found in the large cities. Volunteer English teachers in more rural locations
Average Teaching Hours per Week	15 - 25 plus planning time
Typical Hiring Process	Face-to-face interviews in Ethiopia
Benefits May Include	Many private schools will offer to pay for accommodation and utility bills

Travel Information

VACCINES:

Required: Hepatitis A, Typhoid. Recommended: Cholera, Hepatitis B, Malaria, Meningitis, Polio, Rabies.

WEATHER:

The best time to visit Ethiopia would be between January and March when average daily temperatures reach 25°C. The dry season runs from September through to March and the rainy season starts in July until the end of September.

TRANSPORTATION:

Buses and taxis are your best option in terms of transport as train services ceased to operate in Ethiopia several years ago. Many of the larger towns operate minibus services for shared transport and taxi prices are cheap.

CURRENCY: The Ethiopian Birr

FOOD TO TRY:

Injera - the national dish a soft, sourdough flatbread.

Gomen - Dishes are made from Collard greens, fried with butter and can be vegetarian or, for meat-lovers, can add beef or chicken.

Coffee - Ethiopia is the birthplace of coffee which is served in a special clay pot called Jebena.

SAMPLE COST GUIDE (PRICES IN POUNDS STERLING):

A local beer: 64p

A litre of milk: 60p

A loaf of bread: 60p

Lunch at a local restaurant (mid-range): £3.50

Public Transport (one-way) fare: 20p

Teaching English in Finland

IT'S CLEAN, MODERN AND SAFE

Country Summary

Finland is a small country in Northern Europe, with borders with Russia, Norway and Sweden. It's clean, modern and safe and the standard of living is high. Finland actually has one of the highest per capita income rates in the world, so you can begin to imagine the kind of lifestyle you will lead here.

Finland has almost 200,000 lakes! The outdoor lifestyle is popular here, with locals enjoying a wide variety of winter sports and in summer heading out to their holiday cottages on one of the many lakes.

The weather seems to be the biggest issue for visitors, particularly the long winters, but if you enjoy a bit of snow, then maybe Finland is for you. Don't forget, long winters mean ice skating, skiing, ice fishing and, more importantly, hot, steamy saunas. It's also claimed to be the home of Santa Claus, so a reindeer sleigh ride is never far away. Besides, even though being so far north means that you experience the Arctic night (when the sun never comes up), it also means you can experience the midnight sun (when the sun never sets).

“With vast horizons of forests and lakes with revitalising crisp air plus cutting-edge urbanity”

Teaching Opportunities

Finland has an excellent education system and consistently ranks at the top in world rankings. Teaching is no laughing matter here so it's helpful if you have a little experience. Officially, Finland is bilingual in Finnish and Swedish but only a small percentage of the population can speak Swedish. Most of the population can speak English to a certain level.

There are quite a few language schools in Finland where you will be able to find work. Most of the time you will work as a freelance teacher rather than on a contract, so you will work shifts and your days might be a little disjointed. On the plus side, English is currently in high demand in the business community, so you can expect to be teaching a few suits, which is usually good for your pocket. If you are looking for a short-term opportunity, there is a demand for teachers in December and January for winter language camps.

Teaching Requirements

Degree Requirement	BA/BS required
Typical Contract Length	6 - 12 months
Peak Hiring Seasons	August, December
Visa Info	Residence permit based on employment or EU passport
Typical Students	Students, professionals
Average Monthly Cost of Living	1,200 - 1,500 EUR (865 - 1,000 GBP)

Benefits May Include	Airfare and initial accommodation costs, Private health insurance

Recommended: Hepatitis A, Hepatitis B.

WEATHER:

The weather is generally quite cold year-round, though in the summer temperatures can reach 20°C, but this is usually only June to August.

TRANSPORTATION:

Train: Operators run between major cities and rural areas and are well-developed and reliable.

Tram and Bus Services: in the three major cities of Finland - Helsinki, Viipuri and Turku.

CURRENCY: The Euro

FOOD TO TRY:

Karjalanpiirakka - A small pie-like dish that is filled with potatoes, rice and carrots.

Ruisleipä - A doughnut-shaped bread that is the cornerstone of the Finnish diet.

Lohikeitto - Traditional salmon soup with potatoes, vegetables and cream.

Mustikkapiirakka - Sweet pie with blueberries or bilberries with cream.

EXQUISITE WINES AND VINEYARDS, GREAT CUISINE AND STUNNING NATURE

Country Summary

France is a popular destination for those wishing to live and work abroad. With exquisite wines and vineyards, over 400 official cheeses, beautiful architecture and stunning nature, France has everything. From the peaks of the Alps and Mont Blanc, to the Spanish border of the Pyrenees, down to the Mediterranean and the delight of St Tropez, over to the west coast of Brittany and to the vineyards of Bordeaux, there is something to suit everyone's taste. Exquisite skiing, hiking, biking and swimming, make this an ideal location for those who love the great outdoors. If all of this is not enough, France has Paris, the capital of romance. Paris boasts such sites as the Eiffel Tower, Bastille, Notre Dame, Champs Elysee, as well as many cultural figures, who are known throughout the world, Balzac, Sartre, Camus, Simone de Beauvoir to name just a few.

“The EFL Business English sector has many opportunities.”

This healthy love for life among the French means that there is time to travel, to while away time at a cafe drinking espresso, or to spend long hours conversing over a delicious meal. The people are intellectually engaged and philosophical, regardless of the job that they do. You will have deep and meaningful discussions.

Teaching Opportunities

It has taken the French government and the people time to warm up to the idea of English as the language of global communication. There are sometimes new laws against the use of English words. Due to a change in the law where businesses are now required to provide business English classes, the EFL business English sector has many opportunities, as does the general English market. The main centres to find jobs in France are Lyon, Marseilles, Montpellier and Paris. Smaller cities will also have opportunities, if you look for them. The cost of living in Paris is high, so this must be considered.

The French expect high quality and will not settle for less. This means that you will need to have a level 5 TEFL certificate alongside your degree. French employers do not seem to post so frequently online. The best course of action is to research various language schools in your home country and show up with your CV in the country. The peak time to find work in France is in September and January. It is possible to find fixed contracts for 9 -12 months with paid vacation. Those on 9-month contracts can supplement their income through summer camp teaching programmes.

Teaching English in Georgia

TBILISI, THE CAPITAL, IS STILL REDOLENT OF AN AGE-OLD EURASIAN CROSSROADS

Country Summary

Georgia is an Eastern European country situated between Turkey, Armenia, Azerbaijan and Russia, it's a country with a rich and fascinating history. It's a country of cathedrals, historic buildings and quaint villages and it even claims to be the birthplace of wine.

The capital city Tbilisi is a beautiful, old but cosmopolitan city, where you can spend many hours drinking coffee in sidewalk cafes. If you're interested in the wine industry, head to Kakheti, from where you can explore the winelands and numerous castles and monasteries. If you take a hike up Mount Kazberg you will find a spectacular monastery at the top; you won't find a monastery with a better view! If you're a fan of winter sports, head to the ski slopes of Bakuriani.

Georgian people are famous for their kindness and hospitality to visitors and guests. Friendship is important, and guests are considered to be gifts from God. Rest assured, you will never be lonely in Georgia.

“A deeply complicated history has given Georgia a wonderful heritage of architecture and art.”

Teaching Opportunities

Georgian is a fascinating language which has no similarities to other languages. Russian is also widely spoken here but English is becoming more popular, especially with the younger generations, and there are now numerous initiatives by the Georgian government to extend English teaching. Teaching jobs can be found in private language schools and government schools. Teaching contracts may include reimbursement for flights and accommodation.

There is a volunteer programme organised by the government to place foreign teachers with local teachers in schools and the two teachers will work together in planning and delivering lessons, which can be a great help when starting out teaching. A number of jobs are considered volunteer placements and so salaries will be very low, but there are other paid opportunities available, especially in private language schools.

If you're looking for a friendly country with a warm and supportive teaching environment, come to Georgia and gain some experience and enjoy this fascinating country.

Teaching English in Germany

THE STRIVE FOR PERFECTION

Country Summary

This country is filled with 400-year-old villages, castles and cobblestones, as well as spectacular nature. Exploring the Black Forest or venturing into the Alps will remind you of the beauty of this country. Since the fall of the Berlin Wall and the reunification of its Eastern and Western parts, Germany is by far one of the main players in the EU. The Cold War tension has disappeared, and instead an era of tolerance and experimentation can be found in its place. Berlin is a direct example of this spirit, as well as being the cultural epicentre of Germany. Berlin's arty vibrant energy, glamour and its down-to-earth attitude endears it to those who visit it. It also contains examples of stunning German architecture. Food also has a central place in this culture. The winter fairs serving hot wine, schnitzel, sausages, black forest cake and frothy beer are all there for the traveller to savour.

“The Business English market is a large sector in which to look for job opportunities.”

Teaching Opportunities

Education, knowledge, and the pursuit of perfection mean that education providers need to meet the high expectations that German's have of their learning experiences. As a result of this, the EFL market is open to those candidates that have a degree, a level 5 TEFL certificate and are native speakers. The business English market is a large sector in which to look for job opportunities, as is the adult general English sector. Many business clients are seeking to push their language skills to an advanced level and beyond.

There are fewer opportunities in Berlin and other major cities, due to the competition and expense with more options in smaller cities or large towns. When considering a position in Germany, it is important that you factor in the high tax rate before you accept. If your job is not a full-time position, you will be hit with heavy taxes. That is why it is important to try to secure a full-time contract in order to ease your tax bill. Freelancers are particularly hard hit in this way. Most contracts offer approximately 25 hours of teaching.

HAILED AS WEST AFRICA'S GOLDEN CHILD, GHANA DESERVES ITS PLACE IN THE SUN

Country Summary

Ghana is a warm, friendly country in West Africa, neighbouring Ivory Coast, Burkina Faso and Togo. It is not the most popular area with tourists but as its reputation is growing, so too is the tourism industry. Known as the land of gold due to it having large gold deposits, Ghana has a turbulent history. The slave trade was especially harsh to the people of Ghana and at different times in its history it was colonised by the Portuguese, Dutch and the British. It gained independence in 1957. The remnants of its history can be seen by visitors to the numerous old forts and slave buildings. While it may not be an easy aspect of the country to experience, the beauty of the monuments shines through and it is an interesting look into the past.

“Travel north and you’ll feel like you’ve arrived in a different country, with a different religion.”

Ghana is an unconventionally beautiful country with an abundance of natural beauty. You can sip cocktails on the beach, watching the local fishermen as they work, or you can visit the Kakum National Park - a rainforest with a long canopy walk. You can visit Nzulezo, a village on stilts, or you can go on a walking or driving safari in Mole National Park; no trip to Ghana would be complete without an encounter with elephants, baboons, warthog or antelope.

Teaching Opportunities

Ghana is a linguistically diverse area where more than 40 distinct languages are spoken. English is the official language and though it is not spoken fluently by everyone, it is used as a lingua franca to communicate between the different communities.

As is the case with many African countries, there are numerous volunteer positions and organisations that bring in volunteers to teach English, among other things. In terms of paid positions, it's possible to find positions at international schools, most of which are in the nation's capital, Accra. Employers usually provide accommodation, though this may be in a shared house or with a host family. There are also a few language schools providing English lessons for adult learners. The salaries for teachers are not very high so you won't be able to save very much, but you will be able to live comfortably and enjoy what Ghana has to offer.

Teaching English in Greece

BEAUTIFUL BEACHES, HILLS AND PANORAMIC LANDSCAPES

Country Summary

Greece has influenced generations of European countries for thousands of years. The civilisation of ancient Greece and its presence can be found in our modern-day Olympics and the very notion of democracy, which emanated from its first experiments in Athens. Greek philosophy permeates Western culture, with the sayings and thoughts of Socrates and Plato still resounding with modern generations. Pythagoras and Euclid's influence can be found in the reaches of modern mathematics, music and science, and Greek theatre and fables are still performed today. For those wishing to visit the ruins of some of the most important sites in antiquity, then Greece is the place for you. Despite the chaotic bustle of Athens, the Acropolis still remains its crowning glory. Ancient Olympus awaits those who wish to explore its archaeological splendour.

“Greece is not just about the past, but also has many areas to explore.”

With a large coastline on the mainland, Greece boasts beautiful beaches, hills and panoramic landscapes. However, the jewel in Greece's crown is its Islands. From Rhodes to Lesbos, to name just a few, the islands can be easily accessed from an impressive array of ferries. Small white houses, decorated with blue shutters and bright pink flowers greet the visitor, while small elegant back streets, as well as beautiful coves, wait to be discovered and explored. The people here are friendly, hospitable, and despite recent hardships, find a way to enjoy life.

Teaching Opportunities

Due to the economic crisis that has hit Greece in recent years, there are fewer opportunities than there were before in the EFL job market. People have less money to spend on luxuries. This means that there are now larger classes in private language schools with shorter lesson times, to make them more economical. Positions to teach can be found in Athens, Crete, Corfu, Thessaloniki and Larissa. Most jobs start at the beginning of the academic calendar, in September and again in January. Therefore, it is important to apply at least 2 months before these start dates. Greece also favours teachers who originate from the EU. In order to teach in Greece, it is now generally necessary to have a level 5 TEFL certificate. Classes in Greece are mainly focused on examinations, particularly Cambridge English examinations, and the national English proficiency exam, Kratiko. In order to be competitive, you need to research these exams, so that you can talk about them during your job interview. The salary in Greece is low, but this can be increased through private lessons.

Teaching English in Greenland

VAST SWATHS OF BEAUTIFUL, UNFENCED WILDERNESS

Country Summary

Greenland is a land like no other. It smells of fish, but this should come as no surprise and apparently this is something you can get used to! Greenland literally means 'Land of the People', which is apt considering the environmentally conscious mindset of its people and their close relationship to the natural environment. In Greenland, hunting is popular but necessary, and animals are only used when needed. With the lifestyle of the Inuits still a reality today, ice fishing and dog sledding are regular pastimes.

“Greenland is not a cheap destination, but few places combine such magnificent scenery, such clarity.”

Probably the biggest draw to Greenland is the unspoilt landscapes and the natural environment. This includes vast expanses of ice and numerous icebergs and glaciers. A must-see is the (unpronounceable) Ilulissat: a massive collection of icebergs. You can take a helicopter flight or a boat ride to the glaciers to try and wrap your head around this breath-taking phenomenon. Or better yet, wait for April to August and you can take a night-time cruise under the midnight sun.

Not to worry, while Greenland may not be particularly green in winter, it's not cold all the time and experiences temperatures of 10°C to 15°C in June, July and August. If you plan on coming here, though, you should probably be a fan of the snow, as temperatures can drop to -20°C during the winter. However, if you enjoy hunting, snow sports and socialising over a good cup of coffee, Greenland is the choice for you.

Teaching Opportunities

There are not many schools in Greenland (as there are not many people), but there is a shortage of teachers. The schools are generally small and so are the class sizes. Linguistically, students here can usually speak Danish and Greenlandic, so English can be quite a challenge and they may be generally quieter than students of other nationalities.

Teaching opportunities are hard to find since preference is given to bilingual teachers, but you can try the towns of Qaanaaq, Upernavik or Uummannaq. Opportunities are not always advertised so it is recommended to contact the local schools to find out about vacancies and speak to your local Danish embassy to find out visa requirements.

Travel Information

VACCINES:

Recommended: Hepatitis A, Hepatitis B, Rabies.

WEATHER:

Greenland has an Arctic climate with average temperatures that do not exceed 10°C in the warmest summer months. The air quality in Greenland is among the best in the world due to the country's geographical position to the high north.

TRANSPORTATION:

Greenland has no rail network and virtually no roads between towns. This means that all travel is done by air in planes or helicopters and by boat in ferries and chartered boat services.

CURRENCY: The Danish Krone

FOOD TO TRY:

Suaasat: A thick, broth-like soup made from whale, seal or reindeer meat, potatoes and grains.
 Greenlandic halibut : eaten fresh or smoked.
 Greenlandic prawns: succulent, sweet flavour.

Teaching English in Guatemala

STUNNING TREKKING ROUTES THROUGH THE JUNGLES AND UP VOLCANOES

Country Summary

Guatemala is a small country situated in Central America, bordering Mexico, Honduras, Belize and El Salvador. A mixture of beautiful scenery and ancient history, it has a cultural heritage which is a blend of Spanish and native Mayan influences. Add to that a mild climate and its location as a gateway between Mexico and Central America, and you have a recipe for a relaxed but vibrant tourist destination.

“Mysterious and often challenging, Guatemala offers beautiful scenery and ancient history.”

Guatemala is a country of immense natural beauty which is surprisingly varied for such a small country. You can visit Lake Atitlan, a lake region surrounded by mountains, beautiful villages and volcanoes or the World Heritage Site of Antigua Guatemala. To explore a river cave or take a hike, go to Semuc Champey or spend a few days exploring the ancient Mayan ruins in the jungle of the Tikal National Park. But to top it all off, visit the Rio Dulce - the Sweet River. Here, you hike in the jungle, visit the Hot Springs Waterfalls, do water sports or take a tour through a canyon.

Teaching Opportunities

Spanish is the official language of Guatemala and there are over 20 indigenous languages. Guatemala is more a destination to learn Spanish than teach English but there are still opportunities available. As the tourism industry is growing, so too is the demand for English teaching and there are opportunities in language schools, English institutes and bilingual public schools. Most teaching opportunities in Guatemala are in Guatemala City (which unfortunately is not very pretty), Antigua and Quetzaltenango.

Salaries have never been high in Guatemala and recently the cost of living has risen dramatically, so don't expect to save, but you can expect to live a comfortable lifestyle. There are many opportunities for teaching in return for Spanish lessons, if you can afford not to have a salary or would like to brush up on your Spanish in your free time.

Teaching English in Haiti

A CARIBBEAN COUNTRY WHICH SHARES AN ISLAND WITH THE DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

Country Summary

Haiti is a country that has had its fair share of disasters - both natural and man-made - yet has managed to retain a certain charm and an undeniable natural beauty. Haiti is most certainly not the most comfortable of destinations, but it can be the most worthwhile.

“The richness of the country lies in its history and culture.”

Haiti offers visitors exactly what you would expect from a tropical island: sleepy little towns, relaxing beaches, busy markets and historic forts. This tropical nation has an abundance of fruit and speciality dishes incorporating unusual meats like goat. Seafood is also an obvious choice and let's not forget the national drink: Haitian rum.

On the downside, Haiti is a poor country with high illiteracy and unemployment rates and it can be difficult to experience the poverty of the country. It is not uncommon to experience flooding, earthquakes, droughts and hurricanes, with the most severe storms usually occurring in June to November. There are, of course, areas on the island which are more prosperous and often visitors won't leave the relative safety and comfort of these areas.

Teaching Opportunities

As a result of the numerous recent revolutions, crises and natural disasters, there are a lot of agencies working towards rebuilding the infrastructure of this small country. This includes education, and so teaching jobs can be found all over. While there are more opportunities in the capital of Port-Au-Prince, there are also vacancies to be found in Carrefour, Delmas and Petionville. There are very few paid positions in Haiti, but these can be found in local or mission schools. Most opportunities are volunteer positions (you usually don't need a degree for these) so you will only be paid a stipend, but it is worth it to be a part of the community and experience the true nature of its people.

Teaching Requirements

Degree Requirement	BA/BS required
Typical Contract Length	3 - 12 months
Peak Hiring Seasons	January, June

Average Monthly Cost of Living	95,000 - 150,000 HTG (1,300 - 2,100 GBP)
Average Monthly Salary	16,000 - 23,000 HTG (230 - 330 GBP)
Type of Jobs	Primary and secondary education, international schools, private language schools, volunteering
Average Teaching Hours per Week	30 - 40
Typical Hiring Process	Interviews
Benefits May Include	Sometimes airfare is paid, some accommodation costs may be covered

VACCINES:

Recommended: Hepatitis A, Malaria, Typhoid, Cholera, Hepatitis B, Rabies, Yellow fever.

WEATHER:

Average daily temperatures in Port-au-Prince, Haiti's capital, almost always fall between 21°C and 26°C. At night, temperatures usually fall 10° from the daily average so between 11°C and 16°C.

TRANSPORTATION:

There aren't any currently-functioning rail services in Haiti. Most transport is privately-run, in the form of taxis, coach lines and buses.

CURRENCY: The Haitian Gourde

FOOD TO TRY:

Akra: Fritters made from the root vegetable malanga, deep-fried in spices and seasonings.

Pate : Haitian pastries, stuffed with shredded meat or fish.

Riz collé aux pois: a rice dish with kidney beans, tomatoes, onions, garlic, chilli peppers and a choice of fish or meat.

Pen patat: Sweet potato pudding mixed with bananas, spices and butter.

SAMPLE COST GUIDE (PRICES IN POUNDS STERLING):

Teaching English in Honduras

WHITE BEACHES FRINGED BY THE WORLD'S SECOND LARGEST BARRIER REEF

Country Summary

Honduras is a Central American country with extensive Caribbean Sea coastlines to the north. Honduras boasts acres of tropical rainforest which is home to wildlife such as jaguars and spider monkeys, alongside ancient Mayan artefacts which have to be seen to be believed.

Honduras is a tropical paradise which attracts visitors from all walks of life, with the 1000km Mesoamerican Barrier Reef being a particular draw for divers. Honduras has many nature reserves aiming to protect the tropical rainforest and its inhabitants.

“The friendliness of the locals and authentic Central American lifestyle will draw you in.”

The official language of Honduras is Spanish; however an English based Creole is also widely spoken. Honduras has a population of 9 million, making it the second most densely populated countries of Central America, after Guatemala. The Honduran populace is youthful, and as such there is an inherent desire to learn English in order to access opportunities and improve quality of life.

Teaching Opportunities

An ever-growing number of private language schools in the country have increased demand for language tuition for adults, students and school children alike.

Positions in international schools in Honduras are highly sought after and come with a myriad of benefits. A University degree is required to teach in international schools with most candidates also requiring TEFL certification. Less formal opportunities are also available for native English speakers to teach English in language schools, through private tuition or in local schools as a voluntary or paid position.

Honduras provides excellent opportunities for newly qualified and experienced teachers alike. Most teaching jobs in Honduras will require teachers to secure their own accommodation, however cost of living in the country is inexpensive. Some international schools will offer a generous accommodation allowance, making these posts highly lucrative for the right candidate.

Teaching English in Hong Kong

AN ICONIC SKYLINE, LUSH, PROTECTED NATURE

Country Summary

Although a former British colony until 1997, Hong Kong is now known as the Hong Kong Special Administration of the People's Republic of China. Chinese Hong Kong is governed slightly differently from the mainland and is allowed autonomy in certain areas of its political administration. This colonial past also means that Hong Kong brings with it an interesting fusion of Chinese, British, Indian and Cantonese cultures.

This can be seen in the architecture and the cultural pastimes throughout the area. Victoria Peak, at 552m high, the highest point in Hong Kong, has old colonial gardens as well as a panoramic view of the city. This blends with Chinese street markets. Temple Street night market is the biggest of these. Western restaurant chains are found next to traditional restaurants serving jasmine tea and the famous small dishes that make up dim sum. The largest film festival in Asia is hosted here annually, and the sounds of Cantonese opera also bring a unique cultural experience for anyone staying for a while. Cantonese is mainly spoken in Hong Kong and English is also an official language.

Teaching Opportunities

With Hong Kong as a thriving business region with international trade, it would be a mistake to assume that English language courses were not needed, or that there were not many opportunities for teaching. In fact, opportunities abound in Hong Kong. Employers have come to expect very high standards. Applicants need to have a degree, a level 5 TEFL certificate and experience to gain some of the better jobs. There is also a preference to hire from within the country, selecting candidates based on their residency. This means obtaining a job from outside the country is extremely difficult. Although there are private language schools, many applicants try to obtain university positions, as they have better benefit packages and leave conditions. Obtaining a work visa is often a long and arduous process, with a lot of paperwork.

If you are serious about finding work in Hong Kong, you will also need to come to the country with savings to pay for the first couple of months, but more importantly for the upfront deposits (usually two months) needed to rent somewhere. Many teachers do not generally live on Hong Kong Island due to the cost. Thankfully, transportation is cheap, which makes commuting to the centre for work more financially manageable. The advantage of Hong Kong is that once you have found your way into the work market, it offers long-term stable work opportunities.

Teaching English in Hungary

HUNGARY COULD BE SEEN AS THE COUNTRY OF ARCHITECTURE

Country Summary

From the medieval towns, the Baroque churches, the neoclassical public buildings and the art nouveau influences, Hungary has it all. Budapest is one of the crowning jewels of Europe, and few visitors are able to leave without feeling its magic. This country has its own unique character, which might explain why there are so many artists, musicians and writers. This gives the country a rich art scene. Hungarians also enjoy relaxation, generally in thermal springs. Some Hungarians visit to socialise and relax, while others partake of the waters for medicinal purposes. Hungarian food and wine are also excellent, with Badacsony and Vallány wines being worth a try.

“English is now in high demand in Hungary.”

Hungary joined the EU in 2004, which means that there has been large foreign investment and ownership in the country. This foreign investment has increased the demand for foreign languages, because many multi-nationals are relocating their companies to the country, due to the favourable business conditions and taxes. This means that English is needed to communicate. Some of the hard-economic conditions in the country are also driving young Hungarians abroad.

Teaching Opportunities

The quality, now expected from those teaching in EFL, has risen. It is extremely difficult to find legal employment without a degree and a level 5 TEFL certificate. It is also extremely hard to find a full-time position in the country. This means that teachers are either working several part-time jobs or have self-employed status. Self-employment means that you will need to set up a company, which is quite possible to do, and then invoice your school or clients for the work you do. The main classes that are in demand are young learners, general English, and business English (either one-to-ones or in-house).

Finding job opportunities from outside the country also presents a challenge. Therefore, you need to come to Hungary to look for work. You can research the names and addresses of schools online, before leaving your home country. When you arrive in the country, you can then either visit these schools or call for an interview. This means that you will need to pay for your own flight or transport costs to the country and have at least 4-6 weeks' worth of savings to see you through. Hungarian students, however, are a delight to teach. They are engaged, motivated, hardworking and have engaging personalities.

Teaching English in India

INDIA HAS A SPIRITUAL SIDE THAT IS NOT FOUND IN ALL COUNTRIES

Country Summary

India has a vibrant, colourful culture with something to suit everybody's tastes. It has a huge geographical size, so you can expect wide variation between the different regions, resulting in different climates, customs and cuisines. It also means that there is a lot to see and do!

Historically a region of trade routes, India is now a thriving economic power, though you can expect to see your fair share of poverty. Don't be surprised to see tradition and religion sitting comfortably next to technology and business, poverty and homelessness next to well-dressed businessmen and fancy cars. If you can get over the sensory overload, you will start to realise how much India has to offer.

Culturally speaking, there are so many places to go and things to see: stand in awe of the splendour of the Taj Mahal, relax with a fruit shake on the beaches of Goa or hire a houseboat and float lazily down the backwaters of Kerala. For something extremely special, head to the River Ganges. This spiritual home is both beautiful and jarring: while you cruise down the river you will see the locals going about their everyday routines in the river with their buffalo, and on the shore, you will notice the ritual cremations - not for the faint-hearted!

India has a spiritual side that is not found in all countries. The Indian population is a religious mix of Hinduism, Buddhism and Sikhism. India is a popular choice for travellers who want to get away from the rat race for a while and become more mindful and focused on their inner selves.

“India pulsates with a spectacular mix of people, traditions and landscapes.”

Teaching Opportunities

As India was once a part of the Commonwealth, English is widely spoken and the TEFL market is not particularly strong. However, you should be able to find a job in a language school or a private international school, especially in the bigger cities of New Delhi, Jaipur, Bangalore or Mumbai. It is especially helpful if you have a business background or a teaching degree. Schools don't usually offer flights or accommodation and teaching in India is more for the experience than for saving money as the salaries are quite low. There are numerous volunteering opportunities, and these offer you the chance to experience the more traditional side of India.

Teaching English in Indonesia

ORIGINALLY KNOWN AS THE SPICE ISLANDS

Country Summary

Indonesia has the fourth-largest population in the world, with approximately 238 million people and 17, 508 islands, of which 6,000 are inhabited. Some of the well-known islands are Bali, Sumatra and Java. Indonesia also boasts over 500 languages and dialects. Sitting on the equator, the weather is extremely hot and Indonesia experiences summer while Western Europe is in winter. This country, originally known as the Spice Islands due to past trade with India, China, Europe and the Middle East, produces home-grown cloves and nutmeg. These and other spices are found in the local cuisine. Travel opportunities are also extensive here. It is possible to visit the Gili Islands and swim with the turtles, or see the orangutans of Sumatra, or soak up the beauty of Bali. The vastness of this country means that it brings with it a variety of choices for where to work as an English teacher.

Teaching Opportunities

Teaching opportunities are varied, depending on where you want to teach. Jakarta and Bandung are hubs for work due to the fact that this region is home to the oil industry and Jakarta is the capital city. Another reason is that over 60% of the population live on the island of Java, where Jakarta is situated. Here you will find private language schools and state possibilities, as well as business English opportunities. If the busy traffic of Jakarta is not for you, and you are looking for a more stunning, beach-style existence then Bali, with its strong tourist industry, is also a major source for teaching opportunities. During the peak tourist season, however, you can be mistaken as a tourist, which may become annoying.

Most good jobs require a level 5 TEFL certificate and a degree and offer contracts of 20-25 hours of teaching a week. Many of these jobs also come with benefits such as your flight to the country accommodation, health insurance and visa assistance. In order to leave Indonesia, you need an exit visa, which can only be obtained after written permission has been given by the work visa sponsor. In some cases, where people have worked for some private schools and the conditions have not been good, they have found it difficult to gain an exit visa, leaving them stranded in the country. Before accepting a position in Indonesia, it is important to research the company that you wish to work for thoroughly through online forums.

Teaching English in Ireland

BREATH-TAKING LANDSCAPES AND FASCINATING, FRIENDLY PEOPLE

Country Summary

Ireland, or the Republic of Ireland, is a sovereign state which occupies about five-sixths of the island of Ireland. It shares a border with Northern Ireland which is a part of the United Kingdom.

A truly romantic destination, Ireland is a country of castles and fairy tales, leprechauns and whisky. Also known as “the land of saints and scholars”, Ireland boasts more winners for the Nobel Prize for Literature than any other country in the world. In fact, in Dublin you can take a stroll around Ireland’s oldest university, Trinity College or you can go on the Dublin Literary Pub Crawl and visit many famous writers’ favourite pubs.

If you want to get out of the city, you can hire a car and take a road trip down the west coast of Ireland to experience amazing views, rugged coastline, ancient castles and quaint villages. And, of course, for golf lovers there are more than 50 seaside links courses or 400 regular golf courses to choose from.

“Also known as “the land of saints and scholars”, Ireland boasts more winners for the Nobel Prize.”

Teaching Opportunities

Even though Ireland is an English-speaking country, there are many EFL teaching positions available. Many people come here to study or work and so there is a high demand for English teachers. During the summer especially, there is an influx of European students who come out to Ireland to attend summer camps and these can be a great way to earn some extra money for a couple of months.

Most of the work you will find will pay on an hourly basis, unless you are signed onto a long-term contract, which is usually reserved for local teachers of management staff. Your salary may not be very stable since it will vary according to the season and the number of hours you are given. The cost of living in Ireland is quite high in comparison to your possible salary, so sharing accommodation and picking up private students to supplement income is common.

Teaching English in Israel

BIBLICAL LANDS

Country Summary

Located between the Arabian Peninsula and the Mediterranean coast, Aliya (the Promised Land) is the only Jewish state in the world. The people have had a turbulent history, and Israel has had its fair share of turmoil since the British Mandate at the end of the First World War.

“Many tourists come to the country to visit these biblical lands.”

It has seen the War of Independence, numerous clashes with its surrounding neighbours, and conflict with the Palestinians. Currently, the second Intifada has ended, and there is a very delicate ceasefire in place. This means that some parts of the country are dangerous or inappropriate to visit. These include the Gaza Strip, the West Bank, including Ramallah and Jericho, and the Golan Heights due to land mines. For anyone considering moving here, it is essential to register with the UK Consulate or Embassy and stay abreast of the situation.

Having said this, there are still many places to explore in the Holy Land. Jerusalem is one of these and so is the Wailing Wall. Many tourists come to the country to visit these biblical lands. It is important to remember to dress modestly when visiting holy sites. Israel is also home to both Christian and Muslim minorities. In stark contrast to this religious culture, there is also a huge clubbing and party scene in Tel Aviv. For those who enjoy the great outdoors, the Eilat Mountains offer hiking and exploration in nature. Israeli cuisine also has such delights as falafel and hummus. The language of Israel is Hebrew and Arabic, which gives the expat an opportunity to learn these ancient languages.

Teaching Opportunities

Due to the tourism sector and also international trade, Israelis are keen to develop their English language skills. There are opportunities to teach in private institutions, to teach young learners and in corporations. Applicants are expected to hold a degree. Although not compulsory, a level 5 TEFL certificate can gain you a better position and a higher salary. New positions generally start in September, although business opportunities are available all year-round. This means that due to immigration, you need to begin your application 4-5 months in advance. Arriving at the airport in Tel Aviv can also be slowed down considerably if you have any stamps in your passport from other Muslim countries, particularly Iran. This is also true if you are of Muslim decent or have relatives in Palestine. Contracts generally ask for 20-25 hours of teaching per week. Salaries are generally low but can be supplemented with private lessons. This is also supported by certain benefits, such as an accommodation allowance, health insurance and paid holidays.

Teaching English in Italy

ART IS LIFE AND LIFE IS ART

Country Summary

The Italian motto seems to be that art is life and life is art. Italy is soaked in an amazing historical and artistic legacy. Italy is the country of such legends as Leonardo Da Vinci, Michelangelo, Vivaldi, Dante, Botticelli and Galileo, to name just a few. This pursuit of beauty is seen in Rome, in the splendour of the Sistine Chapel; in Venice, in the exquisite pastel facades and the surrounding islands and in Milan, the world-renowned capital of fashion.

“It is a hugely popular destination for those wishing to find a job in TEFL.”

This is also the country of fine wines, opera and a love of fine cuisine. Soaking up a morning cappuccino or enjoying a gelato, authentic pizza or pasta dishes are part and parcel of the Italian experience. Tuscany also brings into this Italian feast the astounding nature of the Italian countryside. The Alps and the Dolomites stand strongly proud, while in the South the volcanoes of Stromboli, Etna and Vesuvius remind the traveller of the power and force of nature. This means that apart from the cultural activities available to you in Italy, there are also plenty of opportunities for those who love the great outdoors. The people are also alive, passionate, friendly and curious with an amazing eye for detail. This makes Italians interesting to befriend and also to teach.

Teaching Opportunities

With so much going for Italy, it is a hugely popular destination for those wishing to find a job in TEFL. This also means that the competition is fierce. It is essential, therefore, to have a degree and a level 5 TEFL certificate. Although there are job adverts online, the best way to find a good job is by being in the country. There are some online forums advertising jobs, as well as recruitment fairs that come to the UK. A good place to look, once inside Italy, is the Pagine Gialle (Yellow pages).

Italy has large automotive, fashion and tourism industries. As a result of this, Business English is in high demand. The peak season in which to look for jobs is in September and January (at the start of the academic year) and also July and August when English summer camps take place. Contracts are generally for 25 hours per week. In some cases, these 25 hours are split across the day, and generally evenings. Apart from the summer camps, where you will receive accommodation, there are generally no benefit packages available for those working in EFL. The cost of living and your salary are comparable. You will be able to live comfortably, but save little, unless you give private classes. This means that you will need at least 6-8 weeks of savings to see you through your first couple of months in Italy.

Travel Information

VACCINES:

Recommended: Hepatitis A, Hepatitis B, Rabies.

WEATHER:

In Italy, there are different types of climate: mild continental in the Po Valley, cold in the Alps, Mediterranean on coasts and islands, and finally cool and windy in the Apennines. July and August are the hottest and sunniest months with temperatures averaging 30°C except in the Alpine region where thunderstorms in the afternoon are quite frequent.

TRANSPORTATION:

Trains are a reliable and a cheap option for travel both within cities and towns and to more rural areas.

Buses are also a good choice for regional services but there is no national bus network.

Teaching English in Jamaica

CRYSTAL-CLEAR BLUE-GREEN WATER, SOFT SAND, PALM TREES

Country Summary

An island floating in the middle of the Caribbean Sea, Jamaica is world-famous for many things: its 'irie' lifestyle, beaches, music and, of course, its rum. This island nation claimed independence from the British Commonwealth in 1962, and since then Jamaica has embraced its true identity as a chilled tropical island where no one is ever in a hurry.

Basically, Jamaica is one of the places that will come to your mind first when you imagine a beach paradise. The tropical climate has resulted in huge forests and grasslands, which support a wide range of bird and animal species. Add in the hot and humid weather and Jamaica can clearly be seen as an idyllic getaway.

Besides relaxing on the beach or exploring the mountains and forests, there are any number of activities to be done: horse riding, snorkelling, swimming, jet-skiing, kite surfing, visiting waterfalls or even swimming with dolphins. One of the top things to do in Jamaica is to visit Nine Mile. Here you can visit the place where the legendary Bob Marley was born and is now buried.

If you enjoy spending your downtime in a hammock, eating jerk chicken or jamming to some tunes, head to Jamaica, where you probably won't strike it rich, but you will live a good life.

“With Bob Marley, Jamaica gifted us the first global superstar from the developing world.”

Teaching Opportunities

Jamaicans speak Patois, which is a combination of English, French and Spanish, but most of the population can speak English, albeit with a thick accent. It has been recognised that the English teaching in the schools is not as good as it should be, so there have been measures put in place to improve this. There has actually been a movement of Jamaican teachers to leave Jamaica in order to teach in other countries, which means that there are openings in many schools for new teachers.

There are various volunteer opportunities to work in the local schools, but there are also paid positions to be found in schools or colleges.

Travel Information

VACCINES:

Recommended: Hepatitis A, Hepatitis B, Typhoid, Rabies, Yellow Fever.

WEATHER:

The climate in Jamaica is tropical, with hot and humid weather, although higher inland regions are more temperate. Even in winter, daytime temperatures are around 27°C to 30°C.

TRANSPORTATION:

Buses and minibuses are widely-considered to be the best option when travelling in Jamaica as they operate both within the major towns and cities and the more rural areas.

CURRENCY: Jamaican Dollar

FOOD TO TRY:

Bammy - a flatbread made from the cassava, the slices are doused with coconut milk and then fried.

Jamaican beef patties - made from a flaky pastry filled with flavoursome minced beef.

Pepper Pot Soup - a hearty dish that combines vegetables, meat, coconut milk and a variety of seasonings.

Plantains are ubiquitous in Jamaican cuisine. You can try them deep-fried, as wafer thin crisps or fresh and raw.

Gizzada - sweet pastry tarts are filled with coconut, nutmeg and other spices.

Teaching English in Japan

ANCIENT AND THE ULTRA-MODERN SIT SIDE BY SIDE

Country Summary

Japan is a country of harmony and contradiction, where the ancient and the ultra-modern sit side by side. With such a unique culture, living and working in Japan allows for a memorable experience. It also provides plenty of opportunities for travel, from the high-tech city of Tokyo to the old capital of Kyoto, to experience the ancient rituals of Shinto and Buddhist religions, as well as participating in tea ceremonies. Culturally, there are many opportunities to learn martial arts, music, and calligraphy or participate in the spring and summer festivals. Hot springs also offer a perfect way to unwind from the demands of your teaching week. Each season in Japan also brings with it a vast array of food and speciality dishes, such as soba noodles in soup, or sitting under the spring cherry blossoms enjoying an outside barbeque.

“Japan is a country of harmony and contradiction.”

Japan, however, is not for the faint-hearted. Many TEFL teachers experience major culture shock, due to the fact that the cultural rules are often the opposite of what the foreigner has ever experienced before. This new environment, coupled with the fact that the language is so unfamiliar, due to the non-roman alphabet, means that you need to work that much harder to understand what is going on around you. You will also have to accept that you will not be accepted in the same way as a Japanese person. This does not mean that you won't have any Japanese friends, but you will be treated as someone who is outside of the cultural rules.

Teaching Opportunities

There are many opportunities for foreigners who have a degree to find work in many areas of Japan due to the fact that English education is now compulsory in all state schools from primary right through to the end of high school. There is a range of teaching jobs, from children, to adults and corporations. The hours are varied depending on your teaching environment, and classes can range from 20 - 40 students per class. You will need to find work before going to Japan in order to get a work visa. You are generally given a flight to Japan, but you will need to pay rent for accommodation. Often, you have to give a deposit and a one-time payment, up front, to your landlord. This means that you will need to have at least 2-3 months' worth of money available. Many private schools offer rented rooms in shared housing with other teachers working at their institution, in order to reduce the accommodation costs.

Teaching English in Jordan

THE HOMEPLACE OF PETRA AND QUEEN RANIA

Country Summary

When first hearing the word Jordan, two words might come to mind, Petra and Queen Rania. Many tourists flock each year to see the ruins of the splendid lost city of Petra, as well as other ancient Greek, Roman and biblical sites. They also come to swim in the Dead Sea and to experience the Bedouin way of life. Jordan has a hot desert climate in the day, while being cold at night. This country also has some scenic green valleys to contrast the dryness of the red desert called Wadi Rum. There are also many colourful outdoor markets throughout the country. The blue waters of the Gulf of Aqaba also delight.

“The majority of positions are in the capital Amman.”

The capital city Amman seems to symbolise the contrasting nature of this culture. In Western Amman the visitor finds luxurious shopping malls and restaurants. This has a more west feel. Visitors can sit and sip their cardamom coffee and try the calming nargileh (water pipe). However, east Amman is more religiously conservative than its western half. It also houses many of the refugees from Palestine. This divide is also a reminder that although Jordan has liberal elements, people are expected to behave in line with these more conservative traditions. For women this means dressing conservatively. Although foreign women are not expected to cover their heads, they are expected to cover their shoulders, knees and cleavage. Women who do wear regular Western dress in public are often harassed and receive unwanted sexual advances. However, in private, among expats, women seem to have more freedom.

Jordanians also love a good celebration, and the people regularly have parties to celebrate small or large events. They are also friendly to those who respect their modest customs and traditions. They also have some of the best musicians in this part of the world, who often perform in more liberal countries such as Qatar or the UAE.

Teaching Opportunities

Although many people speak English, there are still opportunities for those who want to teach English. Jordanians generally want teachers who have a level 5 TEFL certificate and experience. The majority of positions are in the capital Amman, either in universities or private language schools. Although the salaries are low, some employers offer benefits, such as a reimbursed flight, accommodation and health insurance. Fortunately, the cost of living is also low, which will mean that you will be able to live comfortably even if you cannot save. Contracts are generally for 20-25 hours of teaching a week, and work permits can be obtained after you have arrived in Jordan.

Teaching English in Kazakhstan

KAZAKHSTAN IS A VERY INTERESTING COUNTRY WHICH HAS ONLY RECENTLY BECOME A DESTINATION ON THE TOURIST MAP

Country Summary

It is a country which not many people have heard of or at least don't know much about. Kazakhstan is a landlocked Central Asian country which borders Russia, China, Kyrgyzstan, Uzbekistan and Turkmenistan. It is a former Soviet state, but it gained independence in 1991.

Kazakhstan's mystery lies in the fact that it has continuously evolved through its history and its associations with different countries, including Russia. It has large oil and natural gas reserves and recently this has led to a huge influx of capital. As a result, new cities are springing up and more and more business opportunities are developing.

If you're not keen on city life, then there are many, smaller mountain or desert towns or villages based around markets. For fun in Kazakhstan you hike mountains, visit museums or experience falcon hunting. If you are keen to go somewhere a little bit alternative, consider the home of cosmodrome site which is where the first manned orbital flight by Yuri Gagarin took place.

Cuisine in Kazakhstan might not appeal to all tastes, especially vegetarians. The typical diet consists of mostly meat and vegetables and everything seems to have a slightly meaty flavour. A popular speciality is horse meat or horse sausage, washed down with some vodka or Kumyuan - fermented camel's milk. There is a large Korean population here so it's easy to find Asian-inspired restaurants.

“The world's ninth-biggest country is the most economically advanced of the 'stans' ”

Teaching Opportunities

As one of the fastest-growing economies in Central Asia, education in Kazakhstan is becoming more and more important. There are many new international schools to cater for the children of more well-off citizens. Positions at these schools are usually well paid and the contract conditions are good: flights are paid for, accommodation provided and often a settling-in allowance is given. You need to be responsible for applying for your visa but your employer should assist with this.

Kazakhstan is definitely the new kid on the block when it comes to TEFL, but you'll be surprised how many job opportunities there are and how lucrative they can be, provided you can deal with a lifestyle and culture that's probably quite different from yours. If adventure's your thing, think Kazakhstan.

AFRICA IS A VAST CONTINENT AND IF YOU ARE LOOKING FOR AN INTRODUCTION, KENYA IS THE RIGHT CHOICE

Country Summary

Kenya is situated on the east coast of Africa and is a mixture of beaches, mountains, savannah and desert. It is an economic powerhouse and there is a big expat community, especially in the capital, Nairobi. Nairobi is also known as the safari capital of the world and living here means you can enjoy an urban lifestyle while still being able to easily access the wilderness of Kenya.

All over Kenya you are able to lead an exciting lifestyle. Kenya is famous for its wildlife and when you come here you will realise why. There are many game parks where you can go on safari and look for elephants, giraffe, lion, leopard, cheetah, rhino and antelope. A balloon trip during the annual wildebeest migration from the Masai Mara to the Serengeti is a must. If you want, you can also climb high peaks or visit lakes in the Great Rift Valley. Around Mombasa there are some gorgeous beaches just waiting to be explored.

Culturally speaking there are a few UNESCO World Heritage Sites in Kenya. Lamu is one such place and every year during the Lamu Cultural Festival the community celebrates the past and the future with traditional poetry, henna painting and donkey races. The Lake Turkana festival is an opportunity to experience traditional dances and food. Even better is the annual Camel Derby Festival which showcases colourful camel races.

“Vast savannahs peppered with immense herds of wildlife. Snow-capped mountains on the equator.”

Teaching Opportunities

While Kiswahili is the official language, English is seen as a necessity for progress and development. English is the language of instruction in schools. There are many foreigners working in Kenya and teaching is no exception. You are likely to find work in Nairobi, Mombasa and Nakuru in public schools or private language schools. Salaries are not high but will allow you to live comfortably.

There are many volunteer opportunities for teaching in more rural settings.

Teaching English in Kuwait

AN OASIS POINT FOR THOSE TRAVERSING THE DESERT

Country Summary

Kuwait is situated on the north-western shores of the Persian Gulf. Although one of the smallest countries in the region, it is also one of the richest due to the ample oilfields. It has a hot desert climate, but since ancient times it has been an oasis point for those traversing the desert of the region. The ultra-modern urban lifestyle of the country contrasts with the historical and religious sites located in the desert. Some areas of Kuwait have not been developed for tourism. Failaka Island is one of these. However, it is well worth a visit as it has archaeological sites dating from the Bronze Age. Kuwait City, on the other hand, has chic restaurants, marinas, beach resorts and all-important sea breezes to combat the heat. There are also high-end shopping complexes. In the centre of Kuwait City, it is possible to wander the Souqs (old shopping complexes). Within the Souqs, there are food halls, gold and pearl markets and areas where Bedouin women sell their souvenirs and wares.

“Most teachers come to Kuwait to earn money.”

As in some other Muslim countries in this region, alcohol is prohibited. Kuwaitis enjoy spending a meal together among friends and family. Once again, foreign women need to wear modest dress, which means covering shoulders, arms, knees and the cleavage area. However, behind closed doors in expat compounds or at private parties, there is more freedom. Kuwaitis are not permitted to join these parties under the current law.

Teaching Opportunities

Most teachers come to Kuwait to earn money. There are excellent jobs for those who have a level 5 TEFL certificate and some experience. Generally, however, Kuwaiti employers prefer to employ males, but there are a few exceptions to this rule. The main EFL jobs are situated in Kuwait City, Al Jarah, Al Walfrah and Mina Al Ahmadi. Due to the large oil and financial industries of Kuwait, the main EFL sector in demand is business English. Kuwaitis employ native speakers and jobs are generally advertised on online forums, in the Guardian or in the Times Educational Supplement in the UK. Most jobs require you to teach 20-25 hours a week. The cost of living is high, but so are the salaries. These also come with great benefit packages such as accommodation, flights, health insurance and visa assistance. Visas are required before arriving in the country due to the strict immigration laws.

Teaching English in Kyrgyzstan

UNSPOILT MOUNTAINSCAPES, STARK CRAGGY RIDGES AND SUMMER PASTURES

Country Summary

Kyrgyzstan lies in Central Asia, along the Silk Road, the ancient trade route between China and the Mediterranean. Kyrgyzstan boasts an extensive mountain range, the Tian Shan mountains, which are home to snow leopards, lynx and sheep. The saltwater lake Issyk Kul is a prominent feature of the Kyrgyzstan landscape, drawing tourists from around the world to experience the health benefits of its thermal springs and mud baths. Kyrgyzstan is home to many ski resorts due to the mountainous terrain and cold, snowy winters.

“Teaching is a highly paid career in Kyrgyzstan.”

The education system in Kyrgyzstan is robust, with children entering formal education at age 7 and being required to complete a minimum of 9 years. The economy of Kyrgyzstan was affected considerably by the collapse of the Soviet Union, and still remains one of the poorest countries in Central Asia.

Teaching Opportunities

Paid teaching opportunities can be difficult to come by in Kyrgyzstan as it can be tricky for foreigners to obtain a working visa. Tourist visas are far easier to get; however, this would mean teaching opportunities would be limited to voluntary positions. Teaching is a highly paid career in Kyrgyzstan. If visa issues can be overcome there is potential for qualified teaching candidates to earn a considerable salary in comparison to the low cost of living.

Most schools are located in the capital city of Bishkek. Language centres are also prevalent in the larger cities and hire all year-round.

Kyrgyzstan provides excellent opportunities for newly qualified and experienced teachers alike. Most teaching jobs in Kyrgyzstan will require teachers to secure their own accommodation, however cost of living in the country is inexpensive. Some international schools will offer a generous accommodation allowance, making these posts highly lucrative for the right candidate.

Travel Information

VACCINES:

Recommended: Hepatitis A, Hepatitis B, Rabies, Yellow Fever, Meningitis, Polio, Measles, Mumps, Rubella, Tetanus, Diphtheria, Pertussis.

WEATHER:

Kyrgyzstan enjoys hot, dry summers which often reach 40°C, while winters are cold and snowy, with temperatures dropping to -30°C in some of the valleys.

TRANSPORTATION:

Public transport is considerably more developed and reliable in main routes and cities, while rural Kyrgyzstan can often become isolated, particularly in the harsh winter months. More remote areas rely on horses for transport in particularly mountainous regions.

CURRENCY: Kyrgyzstani Som

FOOD TO TRY:

Besh barmak - shaved lamb, noodles and onions.

Kazy Karta - horse meat medallions.

Plov - fried onions and carrots mixed in spiced rice and served with meat.

Teaching English in Lebanon

LEBANON COMBINES BOTH THE MODERN AND THE HISTORIC

Country Summary

Lebanon in the past was often referred to as ‘the Paris of the Orient’, and it is trying to regain this crown. With Israel on one border, and Syria on the other, Lebanon combines both the modern and the historic. The country has some important archaeological sites from Roman times, namely Baalbek. In Tripoli, it is possible to see ancient Mamluk architecture. On the other hand, the country is also full of modern pastimes. In summer, people flock to the coast to enjoy the beaches. The mountains in Lebanon cover most of the country. Therefore, in winter they drive out to Mount Lebanon to ski.

“Lebanon in the past was often referred to as ‘The Paris of the Orient’.”

Unlike some of its neighbours, it is also far more liberal. The Lebanese enjoy partying, which is evident from the nightlife in Jounieh and Beirut. Many visitors also flock to Beirut to enjoy its laid-back cafe lifestyle and superb cuisine. Some dishes to explore are the lobster, baba ghanouj (roasted eggplants, tahini and garlic), hummus and Lebanese Ashta. Souqs are also another great way to pass the time. Tripoli has one of best Souqs in the country.

Despite some of the turmoil that the Lebanese have faced in their recent history, the people still remain easy-going, open and friendly. The main languages used in Lebanon are Arabic and French. Learning some basic phrases in both of these languages can help you to navigate the culture, particularly when you are first starting out. It is also important to keep up to date with the Foreign Office’s advice for the region based on the changing situation in the country, and internationally with its volatile neighbours.

Teaching Opportunities

After the long civil war that engulfed the country from the 1970s until 1990 and then the Lebanon and Israeli conflict in 2006, Lebanon’s international status is slowly rising again. This means that there is more stability in the EFL market, and there are now more opportunities for work. Places where there are job openings are Beirut, Jounieh, Byblos, Sidon and Tripoli. There is a current demand in the science and business English sector. The job opportunities are few and are not advertised on EFL forums. This means that you will need to locate possible schools online, and then approach them from within the country. You will need to have money to pay for your own airfare and have 4-6 weeks of savings. Most jobs will expect you to teach 20-25 hours a week. The salaries, however, are not the same as in other countries in the region. There are no real benefit packages as part of a contract here. Accommodation is also a major expense. This can be reduced by sharing with other teachers.

Teaching English in Lesotho

MOUNTAINOUS WITH VERDANT RIVER VALLEYS AND INCREDIBLE VISTAS

Country Summary

Lesotho is a tiny landlocked kingdom completely surrounded by South Africa. Also known as the Mountain Kingdom or the Kingdom in the Sky, it is a land of rivers, valleys, mountain ranges and Maluti beer. Lesotho seems to have been designed for the adventurous traveller, with activities on land, sea and even snow. Hiking, 4x4ing, camping, horseback riding and skiing are all possible in the spectacularly untouched scenery.

“Lesotho seems to have been designed for the adventurous traveller, with activities on land and sea.”

Lesotho is an historically interesting destination too. It is home to Ho Kome Historical Cave Dwellings, a World Heritage site where dwellings have been carved out under rocks in caves and in which people still live today. It also boasts the largest concentration of dinosaur footprints in the world which can be seen on dinosaur walking trails.

If you're not interested in the prehistoric, you can also go fishing or boating on the dams or take a tour of the local villages to catch a glimpse of the traditional Basotho culture.

Teaching Opportunities

Though the local government spends a lot on education, teaching English here requires a lot of skill and creativity. Resources are hard to come by and due to corruption, the local teachers are not very well-qualified and there are many qualified teachers who are not employed. Paid positions are scarce and hard to find considering the lack of internet connectivity in the country. There are volunteer positions available, most notably with the Peace Corps, but these can also be difficult to find if outside Lesotho. You need a residence permit to get a work permit, but this can be done in the country.

WEATHER:

January is the hottest month in Lesotho, with an average temperature of 72°F (22°C). The coldest is June at 48°F (9°C).

TRANSPORTATION:

You can easily get around Lesotho by driving or using their public transport system. They have several coaches, mini taxis, and buses, but there is no train service in the area. Lesotho is landlocked and completely dependent on South Africa for much of its outside transport.

CURRENCY: South African Rand and Lesotho Loti

FOOD TO TRY:

Pap – A corn-based dish served with a vegetable stew.

Makoenya – A home-made fried cake that is similar to a doughnut.

Braai – Southern African barbecue which is also served in Lesotho.

Oxtail stew – Oxtail with a few pounds of beef oxtail.

Maluti Beer – obviously, this is a beverage rather than a food dish, made from malted barley and maize.

SAMPLE COST GUIDE (PRICES IN POUNDS STERLING):

A local beer: 45p

Teaching English in Libya

AN ANCIENT CROSSROADS OF CIVILISATIONS AND SOME OF THE FINEST ROMAN AND GREEK RUINS IN EXISTENCE

Country Summary

Bordering the Mediterranean, Libya enjoys a mild Mediterranean climate along the coast while most of the rest of the country is covered by the extremely hot and dry Libyan Desert. Libya is popular with tourists for its beautiful beaches, but you will find the strict cultural climate may be a deterrent for anyone wanting to stay longer than a holiday. Libya is a strict Muslim country and so has some strict laws: nightlife is limited, alcohol is banned and attitudes towards women are conservative. In short, Libya is not for those wanting a modern lifestyle but rather for those wanting to be a part of rebuilding an historical nation and participating in a more traditional lifestyle.

“Due to the economy and industry, there is a demand for English in the country.”

Historically, Libya is a very interesting country. It gained independence in 1951 after centuries under foreign rule. Oil was discovered soon after and Libya soon became a very wealthy nation as a result. Colonel Muammar Gaddafi seized power in 1969 but was overthrown in 2011. This plunged the country into chaos but in 2016 a new UN-backed government was installed in Tripoli and a relative state of stability has been restored.

Teaching Opportunities

Arabic is the official language of Libya, though a number of Berber languages are also spoken and Italian and English are widely understood. There are definitely opportunities for EFL teachers here – in language centres, international schools, universities or teaching oil company employees. Teaching positions can be well-paid, and Libya can be a good option if you would like to save money. The majority of jobs can be found in the capital, Tripoli.

Travel Information

VACCINES:

Recommended: Hepatitis A, Hepatitis B, Typhoid, Cholera, Yellow Fever, Rabies, Meningitis, Polio, Measles, Mumps and Rubella (MMR), Tetanus, Diphtheria, Pertussis.

WEATHER:

In the capital, the average January temperature for Libya is 55°F (13°C). In July these temperatures rise to around 79°F (26°C). However, a hot, dry desert wind can change temperatures by 30–40°F in both summer and in winter. Rainfall varies from region to region in this country.

TRANSPORTATION:

The best roads in Libya run along the coast between Tripoli and Tunis in Tunisia and between Benghazi and Tobruk, connecting with Alexandria in Egypt. Buses are efficient.

CURRENCY: Libyan Dinar

FOOD TO TRY:

Shorba Libya – A tomato soup with spicy lamb.

Ruuz – A rice dish with meat and vegetables.

Rishda – A pasta dish with chickpeas, tomato, and onion.

Teaching English in Madagascar

LEMURS, BAOBABS, RAINFOREST, DESERT, HIKING AND DIVING

Country Summary

Madagascar is the fourth-largest island in the world, situated in the Indian Ocean off the east coast of Africa. It has a colourful history involving pygmies, Polynesian migrants, Bornean sailors, Arabian traders and French, Portuguese and British settlers, so you can imagine the fascinating cultural complexity of the island.

Not only can Madagascar offer a melting pot of cultural practices and traditions, it has an amazing array of flora and fauna too. Madagascar is most famous for its populations of lemurs, but these are by no means the full extent of the island’s diversity: chameleons, tortoises and iguanas all call Madagascar home. It further boasts a dramatic forest landscape with the peculiar-looking baobab and aloe trees. In fact, Madagascar is often referred to as the 8th continent by ecologists because over 80% of the species found on the island are not found anywhere else in the world.

If you’re looking for some adventure, Madagascar can offer gorgeous beaches where you can snorkel the coral reefs, and bustling markets where you can buy spices; it is especially known for its coffee and vanilla. For those interested in trying new cuisines, the seafood salad should not be missed. So, while Madagascar can be, on the one hand, a relaxing beach escape, it can also be a glimpse into a fascinating historical mix of cultures and peoples.

Teaching Opportunities

Malagasy is the main language spoken in Madagascar, though some French is also spoken. In 2003 the government introduced the teaching of English in primary schools and since then the need for English instruction has increased dramatically, making teaching positions readily available. Besides primary schools, you are also able to find language schools and education centres for adult learners.

There is a big volunteer market here, but you are still able to find paid positions. The bonus with jobs here is that you will probably be given accommodation, as well as an assistant teacher to help you out in the classroom.

Teaching English in Malawi

KNOWN FOR ITS SANDY BEACHES AND UNSPOILT ISLANDS SPREAD THROUGH THE VAST LAKE MALAWI

Country Summary

Known as the Warm Heart of Africa, Malawi is friendly and welcoming, if poor. It is an agricultural country and heavily dependent on foreign aid so there is a large expat community with foreigners coming to work as diplomats, NGO workers and government officials. Malawi held its first democratic elections in 1994 and since then there have been marked improvements in healthcare, education and environmental conditions.

“Malawi is able to offer its visitors numerous golden sand beaches and exciting water sports.”

But Malawi is so much more than its economic situation. Though a landlocked country, Malawi is able to offer its visitors numerous golden sand beaches and exciting water sports, all thanks to the famous Lake Malawi. Not a traditional game park destination, Malawi is focussing more on its conservation efforts and the newly-rehabilitated Majete Wildlife Reserve is where you want to go to see the Big Five in their natural habitat, safe from poachers. Or if you're looking to really get away from it all, you can spend a couple of days in a traditional Malawian-style hut in Lilongwe and enjoy bucket showers, candlelight and a complete social media detox.

Teaching Opportunities

There are many volunteer opportunities available in Malawi, especially in rural primary schools. Teachers here will teach not only English but other subjects such as Maths, Science, Art or Sports. You could be a teacher, a teaching assistant or an activity leader. Class sizes can be very large (300 – 400 pupils) as primary education is free and this has resulted in a strain on resources. There are usually opportunities to get involved in health and conservation programmes as well.

It is possible to find a job in urban Lilongwe, but the rural areas are where teachers are needed the most. However, this is where the schools are likely to be under-resourced and underfunded so bring some materials and loads of creativity.

Teaching English in Malaysia

A STABLE COUNTRY WITH MANY PLACES TO EXPLORE

Country Summary

Malaysia is an interesting mix of culture and language. The indigenous tribes are mainly situated in the north and around Northern Borneo, while the Malay, Chinese, English and Indian influences are more seen on the Peninsula. Elements of Persian and Arabic cultures are also still present in the country. This is evident in the numerous festivals that are celebrated by various ethnic groups. Malaysia's official religion is Islam and Malaysians, who consider themselves Muslim, follow the Islamic celebrations. These include the holy month of Ramadan and the Feast of Sacrifice. Malay of Chinese descent will celebrate Chinese New Year. Although Malay is the dominant cultural group, there can be tension between the Malay and Chinese groups, which can present a challenge in the classroom. Languages are also mixed with Malay, English, Chinese and Tamil among some of the languages spoken. The official language of Malaysia is Malay.

“English teaching is in high demand in the country.”

There are many places to explore, such as the modern capital city of Kuala Lumpur, the traditional long houses in Sarawak and the heights of the Kinabula mountain range. Another possibility includes day or night-time excursions to the Borneo jungle, walking high above the trees and looking down at its vast lushness from wooden rope bridges. Malaysia also has a rich cultural and literary heritage. This includes Malay poetry, which has influenced poetry all over the world. Malaysia is also famous for Batik printing on textiles.

Teaching Opportunities

Due to the change in the government system in 2012, English was given a higher status in the state education system. English became a subject in its own right rather than being taught in connection with maths and science. This means that English teaching is in high demand in the country. Prospective EFL teachers also have many options to teach in Malaysia. These include private language schools and state school options. However, unlike places such as Cambodia, the key to securing a job in Malaysia is experience; being a native speaker is no longer enough. You will also need to have a degree and a level 5 TEFL certificate. This is also due to the local competition from Malaysians who are amply qualified to teach the subject. When searching for employees, schools and agencies prefer face-to-face interviews in the country. Once you have obtained a job, work dress is also an important consideration. This might mean that in some school situations you might need to dress more conservatively than you are accustomed to.

Teaching English in Mauritania

LOST CITIES, STUNNING OASES, NOMADS AND THE ROMANCE OF THE SAHARA

Country Summary

Mysterious Mauritania is a country of desert and ocean. The capital city of Nouakchott is a fascinating mix of traffic jams, unusual architecture and vibrant markets, not too far from a lively fishing harbour. Moving inland you will encounter tough desert terrain which is home to numerous semi-nomadic communities. Tourism is not prevalent in Mauritania, so your experiences are guaranteed to be authentic and your destinations untouched. Oil deposits were discovered in 2001 and the effects of this finding remains to be seen.

“Due to the economy and industry, there is a demand for English in the country.”

Be warned: though Mauritania may be beautiful, it is not an LGBT-friendly country.

Teaching Opportunities

Teaching English is still a relatively new industry in Mauritania, but it is growing at a rapid rate. Young Mauritians need English to be able to get jobs and so are motivated and determined to learn. As a result of this interest and backing from the government, institutes and language centres, often in collaboration with UK or US organisations, are popping up all over in Mauritania and in need of teachers. While local teachers earn a very low salary, working in an international school or language centre can earn you a good salary.

Teaching English in Mexico

THE LARGEST SPANISH SPEAKING NATION IN THE WORLD

Country Summary

Mexico is situated between the Gulf of Mexico on the east coast, and the Pacific Ocean on the west. It is the largest Spanish speaking nation in the world. The majority of Mexicans live in Mexico City, which has a population of 17 million people. It is also one of the largest oil producers in the world, and heavily exports goods to its neighbour to the north; the US. Many visitors mistakenly believe that Mexico is situated in South America, when in fact it belongs in North America.

“Mexicans need English to conduct business with the States.”

Mexico has a strong cultural identity, which has been embodied by leading artistic and cultural figures who have become prominently known in the West. Frida Kahlo (the painter), Diego Rivera (the muralist), and Georgia O’Keefe (the writer) are some well-known examples. In fact, the art hub of Mexico rivals that of London and New York. Mexico is also home to the ancient Maya and Aztec cultures. Most travellers visit the splendour of the Mayan City, Chichen Itza, while others prefer the Southern Mayan city, Palenque, on the Yucatan Peninsula. Apart from art, literature and ancient historical sites, Mexico is also rich in regional dance, as the dance troupe, Ballet Folklórico, demonstrate in their lively folk-style recitals.

Teaching Opportunities

Due to Mexico’s location on the US border, Mexicans need English to conduct business with the States, and is now a professional requirement for many in the business sector. This means that the demand for EFL is high. Students are highly motivated and eager to learn. There are opportunities not only to teach business English, but also general English and even young learners. Jobs are available in private language institutions, corporations and state schools. The majority of opportunities are located in Mexico City, Cuernavaca, Queretaro and Guadalajara. Teachers will need to have a level 5 TEFL certificate to secure a job.

Finding work in Mexico is difficult from abroad. Much of the job information that is posted online is generally inaccurate. Instead, you will need to enter the country on a tourist visa and search for possible jobs, visiting schools and asking for interviews. While private language schools employ all year-round, for those considering public schools you will need to begin your application process in May or June for an August start. Once you have secured a job, you need to convert your tourist visa to a FM3 immigration document that will then allow you to work. The visa process in Mexico is extremely laborious and difficult, and you will need to take charge of your paper-work. This means making sure that you leave your country with all the required documents that you need, including your certificates and so on.

Teaching English in Mongolia

MONGOLIA'S NOMADIC CULTURE IS FAMOUS

Country Summary

Ah Mongolia! Land of...what exactly? Any idea? This is the beauty of Mongolia; a country so mysterious many people couldn't find it on a map. It's a tiny country bordered by Russia and China and it's one of the least densely populated countries in the world. So, while you may not see a lot of people while you are here, what you will see is a lot of vast, open spaces.

In fact, Mongolia is also known as the Land of the Eternal Blue sky: there are more than 250 days of sun in a year. Don't let the sunshine fool you – the winters are long and cold (temperatures can drop to -40°C) and the summers short, but at least you won't suffer from a Vitamin D deficiency.

So, what exactly are the attractions in Mongolia? If you can imagine a place where the nomadic lifestyle is still prevalent, where much of the travel is still done on horseback and the weekend sports are archery and wrestling, then you are on the right track. Mongolia is relatively new to tourism and the country is still very much nomadic and this is the attraction. In terms of food, you can expect a lot of mutton and dumplings and if you're lucky you will experience a traditional boodog – a goat barbecue where a goat is hunted and cooked (whole with no pot) on hot stones just for you. Another traditional option is staying in a yurt (a traditional hut). So, if this is your style, then you should think about Mongolia.

“Rugged Mongolia is an adventure destination where travellers can see the traditions of the past.”

Teaching Opportunities

Mongolian is spoken in Mongolia and Kazakh in the west, but there are surprisingly numerous teaching opportunities in Mongolia, though most are in the capital city of Ulaanbaatar, which is actually quite city-like. It may not be the prettiest city in the world, but it provides an interesting glimpse into the clash of the traditional and the modern in this different country.

In terms of job opportunities, you could find work in a private school or a language school. The salaries are not very high, but neither is the cost of living. Many schools also provide accommodation and flights; some schools might be able to organise you a homestay if you'd really like an authentic experience.

Travel Information

VACCINES:

Recommended: Hepatitis A and Tetanus, Hepatitis B, Rabies, Tick-borne Encephalitis, and Typhoid.

WEATHER:

Mongolia has long and cold winters, and short, warm summers. The temperature range is very wide throughout the year, with the coldest winter month hitting -4°F (-20°C). However, in July, temperatures can reach 73°F (23°C) in the south of the country.

TRANSPORTATION:

Minivans: beware that they will not leave for their destination until they are completely full. Other common forms of transportation are buses and minibuses, and the trolleybuses that roam the main roads. Taxis aren't particularly useful, but they do exist.

CURRENCY: Mongolian Tugrik

FOOD TO TRY:

Khorkhog – This is a type of Mongolian Barbeque, which is cooked inside a pot over an open fire.

Buuz – Dumplings made from a flour dough, filled with shredded beef or lamb.

Teaching English in Morocco

AN INTERESTING BLEND OF EUROPEAN, AFRICAN AND MIDDLE EASTERN INFLUENCES

Country Summary

Morocco is an interesting blend of European, African and Middle Eastern influences. Morocco is also influenced by its neighbours. Near the water border with Spain, Meknes blends Spanish culture with Moroccan. To the east, it shares a border with its neighbour Algeria. The country also cascades down to the Western Sahara Desert, where visitors can go on dune safaris in jeeps. This desert frontier is still disputed under international law. Moroccans also enjoy other outdoor pursuits. These include skiing in the Atlas mountain range, swimming on the Atlantic coast and the Mediterranean Sea, and hiking to discover the forests and hidden waterfalls.

“Due to the economy and industry, there is a demand for English in the country.”

A visit to Fez is high on the visitor’s list. This medina (ancient city), dating from the Middle Ages, is protected under a UNESCO mandate and will delight the visitor. Other medinas also include Essaouira, Tetouan and Marrakesh, where time can be whiled away drinking fresh mint tea and eating tajines and couscous dishes. The language of Morocco is officially Arabic, but French is also spoken.

Interestingly, despite its location in Africa, Morocco is not a member of the African League. Instead, it has decided that its allegiance is with the Arab League. This means that people in Morocco follow Islam, and with that behave much more conservatively. For Western women, in particular, this is important because if you do not dress more modestly here, you will be harassed. It is also advisable, as a woman, not to wander alone or take taxis in this country at night.

Teaching Opportunities

Due to the economy and industry, there is a demand for English in the country. This demand can be found in universities, state schools, private language institutes and corporations, where there is a need for business English. Moroccan students are eager to participate. They are motivated and enthusiastic. Teachers need to have a level 5 TEFL certificate. Contracts generally ask for 20-30 hours of teaching per week. Whatever has been agreed between you and your institution needs to be in writing. There are quite a lot of cases where teachers have not been paid or employers have not kept their verbal agreements. There are also many locations to choose from when deciding where to live and work in Morocco. Casablanca is expensive, Marrakesh has a larger expat community, Mohammedia and Rabat are more laid-back, and Irfane is more for outdoor types. Jobs for Morocco can be found on online forums.

MOZAMBIQUE BECKONS WITH ITS COASTLINE, SWAYING PALMS AND ITS TRADITIONS AND CULTURES

Country Summary

Mozambique is surely one of Africa's best-kept secrets. Though it is rich in natural beauty, a prolonged civil war meant that tourists stopped coming to Mozambique a long time ago. The war ended in 1992, though, and since then the country has been politically stable so it won't be long before the tourist crowds make their way back to its white, sandy beaches and warm waters.

“Mozambique is a backpacker's paradise, especially if you are a beach-lover.”

Mozambique is a backpacker's paradise, especially if you are a beach-lover. Bazaruto National Park is the obvious choice for visitors to Mozambique. A national park which protects the five islands of the Bazaruto archipelago, this is where you come to go swimming with dolphins, diving in crystal-clear waters or to take a dhow-safari. Pemba, Vilanculos, Tofo and Inhambane are also popular destinations, not only for their beaches but also for their culture and nightlife.

Besides lounging on the beach, you can take a trip to the capital of Maputo and stroll down the historic jacaranda-lined streets and visit museums, cathedrals and trading stations while soaking up the Portuguese heritage.

Teaching Opportunities

The official language of Mozambique is Portuguese, and a few other local languages are spoken, namely Makuwa, Sena and Swahili, but there is a movement by the government to up the level of English in schools around the country, which means there is a need for English teachers.

As with many other African countries, there are numerous volunteering opportunities in Mozambique, many of which include participation in conservation programmes. Unfortunately, teaching in Mozambique often means teaching large classes with very few resources and no technology, so teaching here will be a challenge but you will be sure that you are giving back to a very needy and grateful community.

Teaching English in Myanmar

RICH IN HISTORY, CULTURE AND TRADITION

Country Summary

Otherwise known as the Golden Land, Myanmar (formerly Burma) is a country of diverse culture, spirituality and amazing cuisine.

Myanmar has an eventful history. Previously under an oppressive military rule from 1962, Myanmar was effectively closed to the outside world. Finally, in 2015, the National League for Democracy, led by Aung San Suu Kyi, won the first democratic elections and since then Myanmar has slowly been integrating with the rest of the world. That is not to say that Myanmar has forever rid itself of political turmoil, but foreigners should feel relatively safe while here as long as you keep an eye on travel advisories.

In the meantime, there is no reason not to explore this fascinating country.

As a rural, traditional country which is, in many ways, still stuck in the past, Myanmar offers many opportunities to experience the natural beauty of the country. There are jungles, mountains and beaches to explore; you can trek through forests to villages, drift down the Irrawaddy River on a cruiser or enjoy an ice-cold falooda on the beach.

Besides natural beauty, there is plenty of art, architecture, archaeology to enjoy, as well as countless Buddhist sites, on busy streets or deserted mountain tops. A definite highlight and a must for every visitor to Myanmar is the Bagan plain, which boasts an incredible 3 000 temples.

“Myanmar offers many opportunities to experience the natural beauty of the country.”

Teaching Opportunities

There are many volunteering opportunities in Myanmar; these positions will give you a small stipend to live off. You could find a job in a private school and your salary will increase with your qualifications and teaching experience. Even with these positions the salary may not seem like much, but the cost of living is extremely low.

You will need a Business visa which is valid for 10 weeks and then you will need to do a visa run to the nearest border to renew it.

NAMIBIA IS WHERE SAND DUNES ARE MOUNTAINS

Country Summary

If you're after spectacular landscapes and awe-inspiring natural beauty rather than bright lights and big cities, then Namibia may be your destination of choice. Namibia is one of the least densely populated places in the world, thanks to the sprawling Namib Desert which occupies most of the country. The Namib is considered to be the oldest desert in the world and its sand dunes are the highest and are the iconic symbol of Namibia.

“You’ll find everything from epic sand dunes to national parks teeming with life.”

Namibia is a huge country with lots to offer. Lush and traditional in the north and with vast open spaces in the south, there are many reasons tourists visit the area: the dunes of Soussusvlei, the seaside town of Swakopmund, safari in the salt pans of Etosha National Park, the Quiver Tree Forest, the Fish River Canyon and, to top it all off, 300 days of sunshine every year.

Once a German colony, Namibia became independent from South Africa in 1990. English is the official language, but Namibia is definitely a multilingual country, speaking also German, Afrikaans and local languages Oshiwambo, Nama, Kavango and Otijherero. Traditional culture is alive and well in Namibia, with Afrikaans culture as well as tribal culture peacefully co-existing together.

Teaching Opportunities

There are numerous volunteering opportunities available in Namibia, though you are likely to be placed in a rural area where you will be the only foreigner. Volunteers teach English, but also Maths and Science and possibly other subjects as well. The cost of living in Namibia is relatively high because almost everything must be imported but if you are volunteering you are usually given a monthly stipend as well as accommodation.

It is also possible to find a position in one of the International Schools, but these positions often require Namibian permanent residency because schools prefer to hire locals rather than foreigners as a result of the high unemployment rate in Namibia. There are a few language schools where it is possible to find openings.

Teaching English in Nepal

A TREKKER'S PARADISE, HIMALAYAN VIEWS, GOLDEN TEMPLES, CHARMING HILL VILLAGES

Country Summary

Nepal is a country of simplicity and tradition, full of mystery and charm. Though it is a landlocked country, it has spectacularly diverse terrain thanks to the dramatic changes in elevation which result in lowland plains, hill regions, mountains, tropical savanna and ice and snow.

“Nepal is paradise for those who enjoy the outdoors.”

Nepal is paradise for those who enjoy the outdoorsy lifestyle. It is home to 8 of the 10 tallest mountains in the world – most notably Mount Everest – and this is the most popular reason to visit this beautiful country. Besides mountain climbing, though, it is also possible to engage in hikes or mountain walks or any number of extreme sports.

Away from nature, Nepal has a few bustling city centres. The backpacker area of Thamel is especially well-known for its restaurants and bars where travellers gather to exchange stories about their day's adventures. These cities show another side of the country when you walk the winding unpaved roads and admire the terracotta-roofed houses.

Teaching Opportunities

There are a small number of international schools and language institutes in Kathmandu where you could find a teaching position. However, TEFL opportunities in Nepal are usually volunteer positions. These can be paid or unpaid and usually involve living with a Nepali family – a great way to fully immerse yourself in the culture. Volunteer programmes are quite diverse, allowing you to teach English to children in a school or monks in a monastery, train English teachers or even build houses or get involved in sanitation or conservation projects.

Teaching English in The Netherlands

THERE IS ONE DAY EVERY YEAR WHEN THE NETHERLANDS AND EVERYONE IN IT IS ORANGE

Country Summary

The Netherlands is a small European country bordering Germany and Belgium. This is King's Day and is undoubtedly the biggest holiday of the year. Residents wear orange clothes and celebrate with festivals and street parties all over the Netherlands. This celebration sums up what the Netherlands is all about: spirit and community. The Netherlands is one of the friendliest places you will ever visit and, as an added bonus, it's postcard-perfectly gorgeous.

“Discover the many secrets of this gently beautiful country and its masterpieces.”

The Netherlands is famous for many things: bicycles, canals, tulips and clogs, amongst other things. Most of the country is flat so riding a bicycle is a great way to get around. From March to May the tulips are in season and cycling through the flower fields is an experience you will never forget. Then there are the windmills dotted around the countryside, and the canals of Amsterdam, while Maastricht is known as the most beautiful city in the Netherlands. Of course, the Netherlands is a very liberal country so if you're looking for some excitement, head on to one of the many coffee shops or take a walk around the Red-Light district.

Teaching Opportunities

It may seem odd to want to teach English in the Netherlands as it is often considered a country where everyone can speak English. Though there definitely is a high level of English in the Netherlands, there are still opportunities for qualified teachers.

Most of the teaching opportunities are in language schools in Amsterdam, Leiden, Maastricht and Rotterdam. However, it is not easy to work here if you do not have an EU passport – though some jobs can be found online, many employers prefer to hire teachers already in the Netherlands. If you do not have an EU passport, it can be difficult to obtain a work permit.

Teaching Requirements

Degree Requirement	BA/BS required
Typical Contract Length	9 - 12 months
Peak Hiring Seasons	August, December

Type of Jobs	ESL Teacher, Private Tutor, Language School Teacher, International School Teacher
Average Teaching Hours per Week	20 – 30
Typical Hiring Process	Interviews via Skype or In-person
Benefits May Include	Assistance with finding accommodation

VACCINES:

Recommended: Diphtheria, Tetanus, Hepatitis A, Hepatitis B.

WEATHER:

August is usually the hottest month with temperatures rising to an average of 63°F (17°C). The coldest month is January, where the average temperature falls to 37°F (3°C). November sees the most rain.

TRANSPORTATION:

It is easy to travel from place to place using the network of metros, buses, trams, ferries, and trains. It's recommended to get a travel card to save some money.

CURRENCY: The Euro

FOOD TO TRY:

Kroket – A crispy sausage-like snack that is one of the most popular fast food dishes in the country.

Stoopwafel – Circular, syrup-filled waffles.

Frikandel Speciaal – A sausage served with curry ketchup.

Bitterballen – Meatballs with beef or veal.

Teaching English in New Zealand

VOLCANOES, FJORDS, MOUNTAIN RANGES, FORESTS AND BEACHES

Country Summary

New Zealand is the land where time stood still, and it is obvious why. Its spectacular natural beauty boasts volcanoes, fjords, mountain ranges, forests and beaches. The fact that it only has about 4.5 million inhabitants means that it is a land of wide-open spaces, peace and quiet, and a lot of sheep!

“New Zealand has mild temperatures, moderately high rainfall, and many hours of sunshine.”

New Zealand is a paradise for nature lovers and outdoorsy types, but also for those just looking for somewhere a bit off the beaten track. From bungee jumping, sky diving and abseiling to whale watching, stargazing and thermal spas, New Zealand really has something for everyone. It boasts an impressive wine region of 120 vineyards and their Pacific Rim cuisine is unique – sampling the seafood, lamb and cheese is a must for any foodie.

New Zealand is a melting pot of cultural activities. Her history is an interesting mix of British colonialism and traditional Maori, while more recently, Australian, Asian and European cultures have influenced modern-day New Zealand. This cultural mix has resulted in enough museums, art galleries and performance events to satisfy even the most enthusiastic cultural tourists.

Teaching Opportunities

New Zealand may not be first on the list for most TEFL teachers but if magnificent landscapes, a relaxed atmosphere and a well-established TEFL environment are what you are looking for, then consider New Zealand: the home of Tolkien’s Middle-earth in The Lord of the Rings.

New Zealand regularly features very highly in the world ranking for education systems, so education is very important, and teachers are well respected. Even though New Zealand is an English-speaking country, the TEFL industry is well developed thanks to the many Asian learners who decide to visit New Zealand to learn English. Most teaching opportunities are in the bigger cities of Auckland, Christchurch and Wellington, but there are a few more remote opportunities too. While there are a few language schools to work at, many schools need teachers for summer camps for Asian schoolchildren. A degree is not required but is preferred.

Schools don’t provide accommodation or flights but will be able to help you to get settled. The New Zealanders are famed for their generosity – just make sure to support the All Blacks!

Teaching English in Nicaragua

VOLCANIC LANDSCAPES, COLONIAL ARCHITECTURE, SENSATIONAL BEACHES

Country Summary

Fun, adventurous and cheap, Nicaragua is one of the safer countries in the region. Only recently discovered by the tourist hordes, it is no surprise tourists are now making a beeline for this Central American country. Colonial architecture, white sandy beaches, volcanoes, lakes, and diverse flora and fauna are just a taste of what you can discover in Nicaragua.

“Nicaragua is an interesting mix of cultures, architecture, food and music.”

With a multi-ethnic population of Europeans, Africans, Asians and those with Middle Eastern origins, Nicaragua is an interesting mix of cultures, architecture, food and music. Granada should be your destination if you enjoy wandering the streets admiring colourful Spanish buildings and churches; head over to San Juan del Sur to surf and hang out at a cheap bar on the beach; or go to Ometepe Island to hike a volcano.

Teaching Opportunities

Don't come to Nicaragua to get rich. Instead, Nicaragua should be considered if you are looking for a really special teaching experience and an adventurous lifestyle. There are language schools, universities and international schools where you can find a TEFL position, mostly in Leon, Managua, Granada, and San Juan del Sur. Schools hire year-round, except for December, when everyone is on holiday.

Employers prefer to do interviews face-to-face rather than on Skype, so it is preferable to be in the country when you are looking for a position. It is common to arrive and work on a tourist visa, though this is not strictly legal.

Teaching English in Nigeria

A PULSATING POWER HOUSE AND COASTAL BEACHES

Country Summary

Nigeria is big. Known as the Giant of Africa, it has a population of approximately 194 million people, making it the most populous country on the continent and, with over 250 ethnic groups and more than 500 spoken languages, to say that Nigeria is diverse would be a gross understatement.

“Due to the economy and industry, there is a demand for English in the country.”

Nowhere can the sheer power of the country be seen more than in the capital Lagos, a city which pulsates with life, music and colour. Away from the cities, Nigeria has a lot to offer. Soak up some sun on tropical beaches, go for a hike and stay in beautiful mountain resorts, catch a glimpse of wildlife in national parks, or relax in warm springs.

Sadly, though, Nigeria has a high crime rate and has suffered from terrorist attacks, civil unrest and frequent kidnappings. Before travelling to Nigeria, check with government guidelines regarding travel and safety. Ethnic tensions within the country have been cause for concern in certain parts of Nigeria for the last few years. Also, be aware that homosexuality is illegal in Nigeria.

Teaching Opportunities

Schools in Nigeria are in urgent need of qualified and skilled teachers, but you will need a teaching qualification to teach in a government school. Finding a position in an international school is easier but the teaching degree requirement stays the same. There are numerous charities, NGOs and organisations which are always on the lookout for English teachers on a volunteer basis.

Though volunteer positions may be unpaid, organisations usually provide a stipend to cover living costs. Salaries in government schools are not very high and payment may be sporadic but private schools do not have these problems. Often accommodation is included in your package because of the high cost of living in Nigeria.

THE DRAMA OF NORWAY'S NATURAL WORLD IS DIFFICULT TO OVERSTATE

Country Summary

Norway: land of the Vikings, the most northerly brewery in the world and Allemannsrett: the right to pitch your tent or hike anywhere in the country. What more could you want?

Norway is a Scandinavian country, perhaps most famous for its oil rigs and fish markets. To be fair, though, this is also a country of great beauty. Dramatic fjords, beautiful snow-capped peaks, glaciers; Norway is a winter wonderland. Imagine ice fishing near your log cabin against a background of dramatic white mountains; going on a wildlife safari to spot polar bears and watch whales; watching the Northern Lights: this is Norway.

“Norway is a country with great beauty - dramatic fjords, snow-capped peaks and glaciers.”

In Norway there is a wide range of outdoor activities to keep you busy. You can hike or cycle through the fjords; you can go on a wildlife safari to see king crabs, reindeer, oxen and elks; or you can head to the capital city of Oslo to sample the cuisine at some of the world's best restaurants or watch some cultural dancing at the Folkemuseum.

In Norway you can experience one of the most spectacular environmental phenomena: the midnight sun. During the Norwegian summer the sun never sets and for a few months, it is light 24 hours a day. During this time, people take advantage of the light and go on late-night boat trips or safaris to experience nature and wildlife during this unusual time.

Teaching Opportunities

English is spoken throughout Norway and the education system is very good, meaning that there are not that many TEFL jobs in Norway. It is helpful if you have experience, a good education and a working knowledge of Norwegian. However, you may be able to find a job in a kindergarten, public and private schools or language schools. As in the other Scandinavian countries, the Folksuniversitet system is a good place to look for a position as an English teacher.

Opportunities in Norway are advertised online but as many of the advertisements are in Norwegian, it may be difficult for you to find or understand. A better option is to find an agency that can place you - if you are not an EU citizen, it is not recommended to turn up in the hopes of finding a job.

Bear in mind that Norway is a very expensive place to live, especially in Oslo.

Teaching Requirements

WEATHER:

The coastal areas usually have relatively mild winters (still with snow), whilst the inland parts have cold winters with plenty of snow, and hot and dry summers.

Average temperatures vary between -10°C in January in Spitzbergen and +16°C in July in Oslo.

TRANSPORTATION:

Norway's public transportation is reliable but isn't as cheap in comparison to other European countries. Taxi rides especially come at a higher price which should be considered when travelling. Almost every town in Norway supplies a network of reliable bus services.

CURRENCY: Norwegian Krone

FOOD TO TRY:

Røkt Laks (smoked salmon).

Kjøttboller (meatballs) – using minced beef, spices and a creamy sauce.

Pølse med Lompe - sausage either grilled or boiled served with a tortilla-like bread.

BEAUTIFUL BEACHES, HISTORICAL FORTS AND TRADITIONAL MARKETS

Country Summary

Oman is a country that has traditionally had and still has strong ties with the UK. It is also an oil-producing country. Situated on the coast of the Arabian Sea, Oman has a hot, dry desert climate. Oman is surrounded by the region of the world known as the Empty Quarter. This is a vast impenetrable desert that was made famous in the West by the British explorer Thesiger. He travelled across this wild place with the local nomadic tribes. Apart from desert excursions, expats can explore the rapidly growing capital, Muscat, which has the splendid Sultan Qaboos Grand Mosque, Oman's National Museum and the new opera house. There are also beautiful beaches, historical forts and traditional markets. For those looking for something more upmarket, Oman also has some impressive shopping complexes. The Grand Mall is the premier destination for shopping in Muscat.

Politically, Oman is a sultanate and has had the same leader, Sultan Qaboos Bin Said, since the 1970s. He has tried to champion more equal rights for women in the country. This does not mean that Oman is liberal. People, especially women, are expected to dress conservatively. This means no cleavage, shoulders or knees on public display. If travelling alone, women should also avoid eye contact with drivers to avoid sexual harassment. However, in Oman's capital, Muscat, foreign women have an easier time wandering near the Western hotel area. Those expats who respect and adopt a more modest approach to life will find that Omanis are extremely friendly and hospitable people.

Teaching Opportunities

There are few native English speakers living in Oman, which means that if you choose to teach in this country, you will be in high demand. Many young Omani students or young professionals are studying English because they wish to travel or move abroad to work and study. This means that there are job opportunities to be found in private language schools, state schools, universities and also corporate settings, due to the oil industry.

Expectations of teachers are high in Oman. Teachers are required to have a degree and a level 5 TEFL certificate. Contracts are for 20-30 hours of teaching a week, and you need to find a job before coming to the country due to strict immigration controls. Employment opportunities can be found online or in newspapers, such as the Guardian and the Times Educational Supplement. The jobs offered have an excellent tax-free salary and benefits. These benefits include furnished accommodation, medical insurance, visa assistance, paid annual leave and reimbursed airfare.

Type of Jobs	Private language schools, state schools, universities, large corporations
Average Teaching Hours per Week	20 - 30
Typical Hiring Process	Interviews via Skype
Benefits May Include	Accommodation, flight reimbursement

Recommended: Hepatitis A, Typhoid and Malaria.

WEATHER:

The climate is hot due to its tropical desert location. Whilst the country experiences a monsoon throughout part of the summer months, for the most part, the weather in the country is typically very dry and hot. Average temperatures are 35°C-45°C in the summer to 22°C-26°C in the winter.

TRANSPORTATION:

The preferred method of travelling is via car due to long distances between cities and the country lacking a public railway network. Oman has many small buses, known as baizas and fares are cheap.

CURRENCY: Omani Rial

FOOD TO TRY:

Majboos - Fragrant basmati rice dish with chicken, vegetables and spices.

ONE OF THE WORLD'S FOREMOST DESTINATIONS FOR ADVENTURE TRAVEL

Country Summary

When thinking about Panama, the first image that might come into your head is the Panama Canal. Although part of your stay here might mean touring this feat of engineering, there is much more to Panama than this. Panama is flanked by the still waters of the Caribbean, and crosses over to the crashing waves of the Pacific Ocean. For anyone who loves the great outdoors, then Panama is for you. Being one of the world's foremost destinations for adventure travel, it is possible to enjoy windsurfing, snorkelling, treks into the rainforest or through the 3 national parks that grace this country. The tropical climate, however, means that you will face quite a lot of humidity.

Within Panama City there are many places to explore and savour. There are several national parks, one of the favourites being the Metropolitan National Park, where you can take a leisurely stroll. Casco Viejo, the old part of the city, is also another popular destination with visitors, which sees perfect examples of French, Spanish and American colonial architecture dating from as early as 300 years ago. The language of Panama is Spanish and having some basic knowledge of the language will help you to orientate yourself and aid your job search.

Teaching Opportunities

Due to Panama's new trade relations, there is a steady increase in business and tourist opportunities. This means that there is a high demand for native EFL teachers. Typical students include business professionals, adults and university students. As in other countries in this region, in order to find EFL work, you need to arrive in the country and then search for opportunities. These opportunities exist, but they can be extremely difficult to find online. This is also the case when trying to find detailed information about Panama to aid your decision about whether to live here. Generally, there is a high possibility you will be hired if you decide to take the risk and come to the country. It is also possible to search for the addresses of potential schools in Panama, while in your home country, and approach these schools once you have arrived in the country or through email before you leave.

This means that you will need to provide your own flight and have enough money to support yourself for the first 4-6 weeks of your stay in Panama. Many employers also prefer that you have a level 5 TEFL certificate. Panama City has the best opportunities and the highest salaries. Outside of this city, the salary can reduce substantially.

Travel Information

Recommended: Yellow fever, Typhoid, Rabies and Hepatitis A and B.

WEATHER:

Due to its tropical climate, Panama experiences both a wet and dry season. The country's dry season takes place between January and April with temperatures averaging at 32°C. The wet season takes place between May and December with temperatures averaging at 30°C.

TRANSPORTATION:

The underground Metro system 'El Metro' offers an efficient way of navigating from one side of the city to the other. The bus services are economically efficient and offer various routes. It's always best to ask the driver or a local for help if unsure. Taxis in Panama are surprisingly cheap.

CURRENCY: Panamanian Balboa

Teaching English in Papua New Guinea

PAPUA NEW GUINEA IS NOT FOR THE FAINT-HEARTED

Country Summary

Papua New Guinea is one of the most culturally diverse countries in the world, with over 800 languages spoken and a wide variety of ethnicities and religions, but it is also one of the least explored. Papua New Guinea – also commonly referred to as PNG – is a very traditional country and cultural life and practices are very important here. This is not a country where you will find a big expat community or your favourite creature comforts, but it is where you will be able to enjoy a truly authentic experience.

“Nothing is contrived for tourists and every experience is authentic.”

Situated on the Pacific Ring of Fire, on several tectonic plates, Papua New Guinea is accustomed to earthquakes and volcanic eruptions, which has resulted in dramatic landscapes. The country is characterised by mountain ranges and dense rainforests, and a lot of the country is actually inaccessible. Tourism is a growing industry here and it's possible to find tour companies that can take you where few people have been before.

You can also enjoy the magnificent scenery through a wide array of adventurous activities. Outdoor adventures are around every corner: surfing, trekking the rainforests, fishing, kayaking or diving. Or, if you're more interested in experiencing the local cultures, Papua New Guinea has many cultural festivals and holidays for you to experience. If you're lucky you'll see a traditional SingSing – a colourful gathering of the tribes.

Teaching Opportunities

The TEFL industry is not big in Papua New Guinea, but more and more opportunities are opening up. English is the official language of government but Tok Pisin is more widely spoken. Tok Pisin is the lingua franca which developed from English, German and French in order to allow communication between the many different languages spoken in PNG. English is a subject in primary schools but the language of instruction for high schools.

There are no language schools here, so you will need to find a position at a local school. In the capital, Port Moresby, there are private non-profit schools for local and expat children. If you are a qualified teacher, it's possible to get a position here. These positions are highly sought after as they generally include accommodation and a living allowance on top of your salary. Unfortunately, salaries are not very high and living in PNG is surprisingly expensive, especially accommodation. Crime can also be an issue in the bigger cities.

There are smaller schools in the smaller towns of Lae, Madang, Mount Hagan and Goroka, but living and working in these towns will mean giving up a lot of the conveniences of Port Moresby, though it will also provide you with an authentic and interesting (and safer) experience.

Teaching English in Paraguay

PARAGUAY IS A COUNTRY OF REMARKABLE CONTRASTS

Country Summary

Paraguay is a small, landlocked country in central South America. It is often overlooked by travellers visiting the area for other more popular countries like Brazil and Argentina, and that's a shame. Paraguay is an adventure in its own right and not a country that should be dismissed easily.

“Little-visited, little-known Paraguay is a country much misunderstood.”

Paraguay is great for those who enjoy the outdoors and being in nature. The name Paraguay comes from the Guarani word meaning ‘from a great river’ because there are many different rivers within the country. There are also many different nature reserves, especially good for birdwatching. Not far from the cities you can walk amongst ruins or visit lakes and waterfalls.

When hunger strikes you can dine at one of the many pizzerias or Korean restaurants or, if you prefer something a bit more local, you can try chipa – maize bread with egg and cheese – or akangue yvyguy – slow-cooked cow's head!

Paraguay is a country of inequality – where expensive cars drive on cobblestone streets and street vendors sell their wares outside modern shopping malls – but it is a country worth experiencing. Once you have visited Paraguay you will understand the saying that people who visit Paraguay always cry twice – once when they arrive and once when they leave.

Teaching Opportunities

The official languages of Paraguay are Spanish, and Guarani and the use of English is limited. Teaching opportunities are mostly in language schools in the capital city of Asuncion. Private lessons are commonly carried out by teachers to supplement their income. The salaries here are not high but neither is the cost of living, so while it may not be the best destination if you want to save money, you will easily be able to have a great lifestyle while you are there.

Just keep in mind the fact that punctuality is not a strong suit here so don't expect your students to always be on time!

Teaching English in Peru

HOME TO SOME OF THE MOST ANCIENT CIVILISATIONS

Country Summary

Peru has been an independent country since 1821, when it gained its independence from the Spanish. Peru is home to some of the most ancient civilizations of Andean history; namely the Incas. The ancient city, Machu Picchu, is one of the archaeological highlights of Peru and South America, taking visitors back to the era of the Incas. Peru is also home to the mysterious and enormous images, preserved in the ground, and only truly seen from the skies, known as the Nazca Lines. Peru has a great climate, culture and amazingly friendly people. The colours of its past, present and the landscape are reflected in its textiles. It is also perfect for those who love outdoor adventure, offering rafting, paragliding, hiking and so on. However, there is still unrest in certain parts of the country. The Foreign Office has declared Emergency Areas in some parts of Peru.

Peru is also a wonderful place to sample its cuisine. It seems that the whole country is obsessed with food. From chilli-rich dishes to stews cooked slowly in beer, from Peruvian chocolate to dishes infused with Spanish, African and Asian influences, the food here is an adventure all of its own. The grilled anticuchos (beef skewers) also come highly recommended, as do other delights found at street stalls and open-air markets. The language of Peru is Spanish.

Lima, the capital, is the centre of Peruvian business and economics. It has a population of 7 million people. Peru has also experienced a turbulent economy in the past, but in the past few years this has stabilised, creating a more stable market for EFL.

Teaching Opportunities

There is now a huge demand for TEFL in Peru. Lima, Cuzco and Machu Picchu are the main areas where you can work relatively safely. Cuzco has become more popular in recent years due to the tourism industry connected with its proximity to Machu Picchu. It is difficult to find a job from overseas for Peru, which means that you will need to be in the country in order to apply for a job. At first, it is also very difficult to find full-time work. If you need full-time hours, then you will need to work several jobs. The other option is to supplement your income with private students. However, with time, it is possible to find a more full-time placement. These contracts generally offer 25 contact hours a week. The cost of living in Peru is low and your salary will ensure that you will have a good standard of living locally, but savings may not be possible. Most jobs come with no benefit packages, so you will need to have enough money to afford your flight and to live in the country for the first 4-6 weeks.

Travel Information

VACCINES:

Recommended: Hepatitis A, Yellow Fever and Typhoid.

WEATHER:

There are two distinct seasons in Peru: winter and summer. Winter takes place from May to September and summer takes place from December to March, the remaining months April and October have varied and unpredictable weather. The average temperature in the summer months is 24°C. In the winter months temperatures drop to an average of 7°C.

TRANSPORTATION:

There is a great bus network which offers great value for money. Peru's taxi network is safe, and taxis can be identified by a lit company number on the roof.

CURRENCY: Peruvian Nuevo Sol

FOOD TO TRY:

Ceviche - Fresh marinated fish dish.

Causa - potato salad.

Anticuchos de Corazon (Beef heart skewers).

Teaching English in The Philippines

THE PHILIPPINES IS DEFINED BY ITS EMERALD RICE FIELDS

Country Summary

The Philippines is an archipelago of more than 7 000 islands, sometimes called the 'Pearl of the Orient'. To say this is a beach lover's paradise would be a serious understatement. So, if you are looking for a variety of beaches – big, small, deserted, busy – then look no further than the Philippines.

“With more than 7000 islands, the Philippines is a beach bum’s delight.”

But of course, beaches aren't the only thing the Philippines has to offer. The capital city of Manila offers amazing shopping opportunities and Cebu has a number of UNESCO Heritage Sites. You can visit the 2000-year old rice terraces of Banuae or explore mountains and volcanoes. Adventure sports such as diving, and kayaking are also on the itinerary. On the other hand, if you're looking for a party, look no further than the island of Boracay.

Aside from its natural beauty, the Philippines has an interesting cultural history. Filipino culture is a combination of East meets West, with particular Malay, Spanish and North American influences. There are many festivals and cultural days which celebrate the Filipino cultural heritage, and, on these days, you will be able to experience traditional singing and dancing.

Teaching Opportunities

There are not as many teaching opportunities here as in other Asian or South-East Asian countries, but that doesn't mean that they don't exist. While the level of English is quite high as a result of its colonisation by the United States in the early twentieth century, recent years have seen a decline in the general level of English. However, there are many well-qualified Filipino TEFL teachers which means the TEFL job market is competitive, but your native-speaker status will come in handy here.

You can expect to teach in government or private schools, universities or language centres – mostly in the big cities of Manila and Cebu. If you are that way inclined, there are usually various opportunities in the more rural areas.

Teaching English in Poland

A COUNTRY WITH A LONG HISTORY

Country Summary

Poland is a country with a long history. Not only has it been witness to some major world events, such as World War II and the Cold War, it has also produced some leading cultural and scientific figures. Poland was the birth place of both Copernicus and Chopin, as well as one of the most popular Popes in modern times, John Paul II. The natural beauty of this country is also something to savour. The peaks of the Tatra Mountains in the south, the Baltic coast in the north, the lake-side retreats and losing yourself in the national parks, all endear themselves to the explorer of this country. Poland also borders seven neighbouring countries, including Russia, the Czech Republic, Slovakia, the Ukraine, Germany, Belarus and Lithuania.

The people are hospitable, fiercely intelligent and fast to learn, particularly when it comes to English. This might be because Polish is one of the most difficult languages in the world and has an impressive use of consonants that is not found in many other languages. Even Poles play word games on the radio to test their own language skills. The climate in Poland is quite cold in winter, so you need to be aware and equipped for this when living here.

Teaching Opportunities

As tourism is now on the rise in Poland, there is a large EFL market, particularly in Gdansk, Krakow, Poznan and Warsaw. This has also been accelerated by a government policy that requires all those who are entering business-related careers to pass a state proficiency examination. This means that business English is an in-demand sector, but young learners, teens and adults are also on the rise for language classes. In order to find a job, you need to start looking in August for October recruitment, and in November and December for January opportunities.

Unusually for Europe, some of the best jobs in Poland, with excellent benefit packages, can be found in online forums as well as newspapers, such as the Guardian TEFL section. Benefits can include 9-12 month contracts with airfare paid in full or subsidised, and free shared accommodation. Teachers generally give 25 hours of classes a week, and some teachers also supplement their salary by giving private lessons outside of work hours. The cost of living is low, and if your accommodation cost has been taken care of by the school you are working for, then you will have a comfortable life in Poland. The competition, however, for the good contracts means that you need to have a level 5 TEFL certificate. Salaries are also linked to qualifications and experience.

CLIFF TOP CASTLES AND MEDIEVAL COBBLESTONE FISHING VILLAGES

Country Summary

Portugal is often overlooked as a TEFL destination, due to the draw of its neighbour Spain. Portuguese culture is quite distinct from other countries in the region. Cliff top castles and medieval cobblestone fishing villages remind the visitor of the long history of this country. Visigoths and Romans are just a few who have left their mark on its history. World Heritage sites Tomar and Batalha, along with numerous others, all wait for the visitor to discover them. The Portuguese also left their influence on other countries during their illustrious sailing past. Apart from its historical attractions, the beaches of Lagos and Cascais, and the Serra Da Estrela mountain range, stand out for their stunning beauty. Lisbon, the capital city, is also a laid-back but interesting place, with white and black cobblestones, museums, gothic architecture, bright yellow trams and cafe-lined streets in which you can while away your time.

The haunting musical tradition of Fado, in its raw evocative lyrics, reminds you that this is a country that is close to its roots and feels life with passion. The Portuguese also enjoy relaxing with each other over their unique cuisine. The Portuguese are proud of their country and heritage. Anyone who embraces this culture and tries to learn the Portuguese language will endear themselves to the locals.

Teaching Opportunities

Teaching English in Portugal is a good option for those who have recently qualified. The increase in tourism has created a demand for EFL teachers, particularly in places such as Braga, Coimbra, Leiria, Lisbon and Porto. Business English and young learners seem to be the most in-demand sectors in the EFL market. Companies generally employ teachers who have a degree and a level 5 TEFL certificate. The majority of teachers work on a part-time or freelance basis, which means that they work for several companies. Due to early morning or evening classes, teachers often have free time in the day to also privately tutor individual students. The cost of living is low, which means that you will financially have a comfortable life in Portugal. The best way to find work in Portugal is to look onsite in the country. The Portugal News advertises EFL jobs. The British Council in Porto, Coimbra and Lisbon can also help you to locate reputable language schools in these locations.

Teaching English in Puerto Rico

IT IS A BEAUTIFUL ISLAND OF MOUNTAINS AND BEACHES

Country Summary

Puerto Rico may be a territory of the United States of America – they still use the US dollar as their currency and US visitors don't need any visas – but it is a blend of Spanish, African and Caribbean influences.

Come here to enjoy the tropical climate and the relaxing beach vibes or, alternatively, to spend your time more actively. Beach activities include snorkelling, scuba diving, surfing and spearfishing. If you take a boat to the bioluminescent bays of Lajas during the new moon you can experience glowing microscopic organisms in the water or if you go to the rainforest of El Yunque you can hike the mountainous region to waterfalls.

Puerto Rico is known as the gastronomic capital of the Caribbean. Besides fabulous restaurants with world-class chefs, it would be a sin to leave without tasting mofongo (plantains stuffed with seafood, pork or vegetables), asopao (soup with chicken, vegetables and rice) or lechon (pig roasted on a spit). You know what they say, where there's a lechon, there's a party!

“Endless sand, swashbuckling history and wildly diverse tropical terrain.”

Teaching Opportunities

English and Spanish are both the official languages of Puerto Rico, but English is not widely spoken. There is currently a move towards providing bilingual education which means that there are plenty of opportunities for English teachers. If not in the state system, there is a need for teachers in the private international and language schools, which are mostly situated in the bigger cities of San Juan and Ponce. If you're Canadian or American you'll be especially appreciated for your accent.

The salaries in Puerto Rico are high for the area, but the cost of living is not as cheap as you would expect, so saving is not really an option here. However, schools may offer accommodation or pay an accommodation allowance.

Teaching English in Qatar

QATAR IS A CELEBRATION OF AMBITION AND A WORK OF ART

Country Summary

Qatar is a Middle Eastern peninsula with considerable Gulf coastlines and imposing architecture inspired by Islamic designs. The capital of Qatar, Doha, is renowned for futuristic design, magnificent skyscrapers and general splendour. Qatar is one of the richest countries in the world with the highest per capita income owing in part to the small population. Qatar is known to be a safe country with low crime rates and an effective police presence.

“Generally speaking, the highest paid ESL jobs in the world are found here.”

The official language of Qatar is Arabic; however English is widely spoken by the migrant population. Qatar is multicultural with influences from all over the world, wherever you are from you will find yourself at home in Qatar.

Due to the considerable number of ex-pats in Qatar, most teaching opportunities will be in international schools, where qualified teachers are sought after and the language of instruction is predominantly English. These posts are extremely lucrative and come with significant fringe benefits, making teaching in Qatar very appealing to experienced and newly qualified teachers.

Teaching Opportunities

The country requires teachers of all levels in their international schools, private schools and higher education establishments. Opportunities are also available for native English speakers to teach English in private tutoring sessions and foreign language schools for Qatari nationals wishing to develop their English speaking skills as the country continues to thrive as a base for English speaking foreign workers.

Qatar is very open to foreign workers and a working visa is relatively straightforward to obtain, although Qatar does operate under the Kafala system, meaning every individual wishing to gain entry to the country on a working visa must be sponsored by an employer, organisation or family member.

FAIRIES, WITCHES AND GHOSTS

Country Summary

The first words that might come to mind when hearing the word 'Romania' are Count Dracula and Transylvania. The Bran Castle stands as a reminder of Bram Stoker's literary legacy. This story seems to cast a dark image on the country, but in fact, the Transylvanian region is one of the most beautiful areas of the country, with its breath-taking mountain scenery, as well as its multi-ethnic population. In Romania, the medieval castles, monasteries and villages are a must-see, as well as witnessing ancient traditions that are still actively practiced in the country. It is not unusual to see traditional farming methods and horse drawn carts, as well as agrarian crafts commonly still being used in rural communities. There is also a strong folk culture of superstition. There are many folk stories still actively told of fairies, witches and ghosts. Romanian music is also another area that is both unique and mesmerising for Romanians and visitors alike.

Bucharest, the capital, is not as attractive as other parts of Romania. Even the Romanians are not keen on the architectural landscape that was unfortunately redesigned by Ceausescu during the communist era. Despite its appearance, however, Bucharest has a lively student and cultural scene with Romanians visiting the theatre and opera, as well as film festivals. There are also well-kept parks in the city. There is an excellent transport system from Bucharest, which allows you to explore the beautiful natural landscape of Romania.

Teaching Opportunities

Having joined the EU in 2007, there has been large foreign investment in the country. There is also a general enthusiasm to learn English, but currently the EFL market is underdeveloped. Many state schools struggle to pay native speaker teachers. In the private sector, the main opportunities are located in the language schools of Bucharest, particularly for business English. Most job opportunities are not advertised on online forums, so teachers need to go to Romania to find paid work. This will mean that you will need to have 4-6 weeks of savings and also money to pay for your flight to Romania. Being a native speaker is enough for some available positions, but for the better schools a level 5 TEFL certificate can be a bonus to get you a higher paid job. It is also important that you check out the reliability of the school (for example paying your salary) before agreeing to a job. A reputable source to vet schools is the British Council in Bucharest. Salaries offered in Romania are not huge and might need to be supplemented with private classes. Another option to decide whether you would like to work in Romania is to work as a volunteer teacher in the summer months on one of the English Camps.

Teaching English in Russia

TSARS AND REVOLUTIONS

Country Summary

Russia is officially the biggest country in the world, with its landmass spanning from the trading port of Vladivostok in Siberia, near the Chinese border, all the way to its Western neighbours in Eastern Europe. Russia has a unique history of Tsars and the communist revolution of 1918. The richness of this history and the intricacies of the country have been recorded in the works of Tolstoy and Dostoyevsky, as well as Pushkin. The country has seen the breakup of its satellite states and the USSR, but its orthodox religion still remains. This is evident in the sight of the brightly coloured domes littered across the Moscow skyline.

The golden domes and white buildings of the Kremlin, home to the current president and the Tsars of the past, remind the visitor to Russia of its amazing history. The Red Square and Lenin’s Mausoleum hail back to the era of communism and the only hidden evidence of Stalin is kept beside the Kremlin walls. The underground splendour of Moscow’s metro stations, decorated in chandeliers, is an adventure in itself. Such opulence is more than matched by the heritage of St Petersburg. Outside of these two western cities lies a vast expanse of grass lands, stunning lakes and mountain regions, as well as the deepest lake in the world, Lake Baikal,

The Russian alphabet also presents a challenge and adventure to those used to western style scripts. This challenge is one worth undertaking.

Teaching Opportunities

There is a huge demand for EFL due to tourism and international business. The main locations for EFL are Moscow, St Petersburg and Vladimir. There are also opportunities outside of these cities for the adventurous EFL teacher. There is a wide-range of students to choose from, ranging from young learners, teens, students, adults and business professionals. Job opportunities are advertised online and can come with good benefit packages, such as airfare, accommodation, paid holidays, 9-12-month contracts and a contract completion bonus. The contract hours usually consist of 20 - 30 hours of class contact a week. A level 5 TEFL certificate is generally required, and the more experience you gain the more this will be reflected in your salary. Your salary and the cost of living seem to balance themselves, so although you might not save, you will have a comfortable lifestyle. Outside of the main cities, more savings might be achieved. For all those living and working in Russia, you will need to have a work visa.

Teaching English in Saudi Arabia

ULTRA-MODERN METROPOLISES

Country Summary

As the biggest oil producer in the world, the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia is also the richest. Ultra-modern metropolises sit side by side with ancient religious and historical sites. Each year thousands upon thousands of Muslim pilgrims visit the most important Islamic shrines in Mecca and Medina. The Kingdom also sits surrounded by one of the largest deserts in the world, known as the Empty Quarter, which explains the dry heat of the day and the cool nights often experienced in this country. This does not mean that the landscape is devoid of nature. Saudi Arabia also has green oasis areas. Saudis seem to combine all aspects of the country in their free time and leisure activities from shopping in plush shopping centres to having a picnic in the desert with family and friends.

“As the biggest oil producer in the world, the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia is also the richest.”

For anyone thinking of living and working in Saudi Arabia, they need to carefully consider the considerable culture shock that they will experience when moving to this country. The country applies strict Sharia law for both Muslims and non-Muslims. This means gender segregation in all public areas. For foreign women, there are certain laws that restrict what you can and cannot do. It is also illegal to leave the house without an Abaya (the black coat that covers your clothes) and your head covered. These laws are enforced by the religious police. Those that do not obey the laws face being imprisoned for inappropriate conduct. This also means that alcohol is prohibited.

Teaching Opportunities

For those who are prepared for the culture shock, and can adapt to these rules, working as an EFL teacher can be very lucrative with some of the highest tax-free salaries in the world. These also come with excellent benefit packages, which can include furnished accommodation, health insurance, visa assistance and even international school fees if you are thinking of relocating with children. This also means that employers expect you to have a degree, a level 5 TEFL certificate and at least 2 years' experience.

Positions are available to teach English to the military, oil companies, universities and in-house for corporations. Contracts usually consist of 20-25 hours of teaching per week. The main centres to find jobs are the capital, Riyadh, as well as Jeddah. The latter is more popular with foreigners, as it has a larger expat community. Any position that you accept must provide you with a work visa that also allows you to apply for an Iqama (ID card). Be aware that companies often take your passport from you and will only issue you with an exit visa and your passport on successful completion of your contract.

WEATHER:

Saudi Arabia has a hot climate year-round with very little rainfall. Despite the dry weather, it still experiences seasons with the hottest months falling between June and August and winter falling between January and February. Average temperatures stand at 36°C during summer time and throughout the winter months temperatures can drop to 15°C.

TRANSPORTATION:

Many choose to travel around Saudi Arabia via private car or taxi as public transport services here can often be limited. However, Inter-city buses provide an economic way of getting from A to B and can be found across all major cities. These buses are generally comfortable and are air-conditioned.

Teaching English in Senegal

FULL OF VIBRANT COLOUR PERCHED ON THE ATLANTIC

Country Summary

This former French colony is a cultural melting pot. It is a Muslim country, so you can expect plenty of mosques and religious monuments and you can also count on beautiful, rolling plains and coastal towns. The capital Dakar is vibrant, colourful and chaotic, promising good sightseeing opportunities as well as an enjoyable nightlife.

“Due to the economy and industry, there is a demand for English in the country.”

If you prefer to spend more time in nature than in the big city, you're never far from some spectacular sights. You can visit the Pink Lake – so-called because of the colour caused by the lake's high salt content, tour the forest and wetlands of the Saloum Delta National Park, hang out on the beautiful, long beaches, or go and see the mind-boggling World Heritage Site of the Stone Circles.

Teaching Opportunities

French and Wolof are the two languages which are widespread in Senegal, but English is not, which means there are opportunities for EFL teachers. You can find positions in private international schools, especially in Dakar or the coastal town of St Louis, or you can volunteer in local schools in rural areas. These positions will offer only minimal resources and big classes. There are also language schools for adults.

Private schools offer attractive packages, including airfare, healthcare and bonuses. However, two years of teaching experience is necessary for a teaching qualification.

WEATHER:

Senegal has a hot and arid climate with both a dry and rainy season, the country's rainy season takes place from July to October with the remaining months experiencing high temperatures averaging at 30°C throughout, and during the rainy season, temperatures average at 26°C.

TRANSPORTATION:

The only efficient way of getting around Senegal is via its bus services which are available to locals. The Intracity buses, are the most popular and this bus system runs on a regular service, though they can generally be quite crowded inside, so it's always best to arrive in advance to ensure you get a seat.

Teaching English in Singapore

AN ENCHANTING GARDEN CITY

Country Summary

Singapore is a small island nation, located off the Malay Peninsula. Singapore is one of the safest and cleanest countries to work in, due to the tough laws and fines enacted on those who drop litter or cross at traffic lights when they are red. Chewing gum is also banned. This country is also financially prosperous, having one of the major Asian financial centres on its door step.

“EFL teachers from abroad face fierce competition with local English-speaking residents.”

Culturally, as with Malaysia, Singapore is a curious mix of Chinese, Malaysians, Indians and expats from around the world. This is reflected in the colonial architecture in Singapore City, Little India and China Town, Thian Hock Keng (the oldest Buddhist temple) and the vibrant colours of Sri Mariamman (a Hindu temple). Apart from the architecture and culture, Singapore is famous for its world-renowned orchids. These can be seen at the National Orchid Garden. It is also possible to explore beautiful reservoirs and to experience treetop walks above the lush rainforest canopies.

Teaching Opportunities

The need for English means that there are opportunities to teach English, but they are not immediately obvious, as in other Asian countries such as Thailand or Cambodia. The Ministry of Education is open to hiring overseas applicants in order to bring new perspectives to the country. Opportunities abound in state and private institutions. Generally, a degree and a level 5 TEFL certificate will help you to compete with local applicants and to gain better jobs. Once you have obtained employment, you will find that the students are often highly motivated and enthusiastic to learn.

One of the biggest issues facing potential teachers is the cost of living. Rent is a major expense for teachers, but online forums often have solutions for shared accommodation. Therefore, it is important to begin applying a couple months in advance, before your arrival in Singapore, to secure a job before you leave your country. Jobs are generally available all year-round, but for Ministry of Education jobs training begins in July for jobs, starting in January. Early application will also give you a better chance to secure a benefits package. This can include a return flight, work permit assistance and possible accommodation allowance. Transport and food on the other hand are cheap, which means you will be able to live comfortably.

Teaching English in Slovakia

UNTOUCHED BY TOURISM AND THE OUTSIDE WORLD

Country Summary

For those who would like to escape from the rushed pace of Western Europe, and have a more laid-back experience, Slovakia is the place to head. This country is one of the few in Europe that is relatively untouched by tourism and the outside world. People travel to Slovakia not for the sites of the capital city of Bratislava, but for the outstanding and astounding nature. For all outdoor enthusiasts, this is the country for you. Hiking through the natural landscape and admiring the castles, fortresses and gothic churches is the way to pass the time in Slovakia. The medieval villages and towns have also preserved their folk traditions. Slovakia also offers impressive skiing and snowboarding facilities during the winter months. There is also a good transport system that will help you to explore the country. The people of Slovakia are relaxed and friendly, which also makes it a comfortable place to live. The cost of living is low, as well as the income tax, which can be attractive if you are in full-time salaried work.

Teaching Opportunities

The English demand in Slovakia is on the increase. If you are a native speaker, you will also be in demand. The students are enthusiastic and friendly to teach, and there is less competition for EFL jobs, compared with the neighbouring countries of Poland and the Czech Republic. The most in demand EFL sector is currently business English, particularly in the capital Bratislava. Other locations to teach English include Presov, Nitra, Kosice, Bystrica and Banska. Private language schools seem the best options for teachers, as they pay more than state schools. On a local salary you will find that your monthly pay packet will cover the cost of living in the country but might not allow for huge savings. This will need to be considered when choosing between a state or private institution. Teachers can also top up their salary by giving private lessons.

Teachers generally teach 20-25 hours per week. Many job opportunities are advertised online and also come with benefit packages such as health insurance, holidays, a flight subsidy and fixed contracts. In some cases, you might also be given free accommodation or accommodation assistance. It is also possible to find jobs in the country, but you might miss out on some of the benefits being offered to those who apply from abroad. The start dates for many jobs are in June for summer camps, and in September for other language school employment.

Teaching English in South Africa

YOU CAN CATCH SOME SUN ON THE BEACH OR GO HIKING IN THE MOUNTAINS

Country Summary

South Africa is a country of extremes. From the bustling metropolis of the city of Gold in the north and the world-famous beaches in the south, to the desert in the west and the tropical heat of the east, South Africa has something to offer everyone.

During the day you can spend some time in the winelands tasting superb local wines or sampling food at a traditional braai. You can catch some sun on the beach or go hiking in the mountains. If you're feeling adventurous, go looking for the 'Big 5' on safari or even go diving with sharks! At night, hang out at the local malls or nightclubs.

It might have a controversial history and a reputation for its crime, but South Africa has spectacular natural beauty and a rich culture that will welcome you with open arms. You might find that once you've arrived, you'll never want to leave!

“It benefits its position at the Southern end of the World’s most epic Continent.”

Teaching Opportunities

The demand for teachers is not very high in South Africa, probably due to its location. There are language schools around the country, mostly centred in Cape Town, Johannesburg and Durban. These centres run classes for adult learners from a wide variety of countries and backgrounds. Classes range from General English to exam classes, group classes or one-to-ones. You could be teaching a Brazilian student or a Swiss businessman; no two weeks will be the same. Sometimes groups of children will be brought in for summer courses, but this is not common.

Don't expect to come to South Africa to save a lot of money. You will probably earn an hourly wage rather than a monthly salary, and you won't be guaranteed set hours. Schools won't contribute to airfares, visas or accommodation. The cost of living in South Africa is also relatively high, but the reason you would come here is the lifestyle and the experience. South Africa is a country where you can make a difference to the local community. There are numerous opportunities for volunteer work if you are interested in giving back – an experience well worth the trip to the southernmost tip of Africa.

Teaching English in South Korea

HISTORIC, MODERN, HECTIC, PEACEFUL

Country Summary

South Korea is a living, breathing oxymoron. Seoul is a bustling metropolis with over 10 million inhabitants, yet here you can find historical sites and contemporary attractions living side by side: palaces and museums are close to massive shopping malls and busy restaurants. Busan and Daegu are two other big cities where you can wander around museums or shop to your heart's content.

“Work in one of the most exciting Countries in Asia.”

But not far from the bigger cities, you're sure to find a peaceful place to rest and relax. Mountains and national parks are plentiful, or you can visit one of the many islands to have a look around. Jeju Island is a popular local holiday destination and UNESCO World Heritage Site, known for its waterfalls, volcanoes and caves.

Of course, South Korea has a complex history and relationship with North Korea, which remains one of the most mysterious and secretive countries in the world. If you're feeling brave, you can even visit the Demilitarized Zone, which US President Bill Clinton called 'the scariest place on Earth'.

If you're looking for adventure, South Korea is a country to consider. If you want to experience the true Gangnam Style or try authentic Korean barbeque and kimchi, look no further than this island nation.

Teaching Opportunities

Teaching opportunities in South Korea are many: at last count there were 43 000 English teachers working here, and still so many jobs to fill! The market here is growing steadily and many foreigners are finding South Korea a good place to gain teaching experience and still be able to save some cash. You can either work for the Korean Ministry of Education in a public school or you could work in a private school, also known as a Hagwon. Your days may be long, but they will be worth it.

Most schools will reimburse your flight on completion of your contract, as well as offer accommodation, paid holidays and an annual bonus. All the holidays allow you plenty of time to jump across to Japan or take a quick trip to other top Asian destinations, or you could travel locally and save your hard-earned cash for a rainy day.

Teaching English in Spain

VIBRANT CULTURAL LANDSCAPE

Country Summary

Spain is an interesting cultural mix of European and Arabic heritage, as well as its own indigenous populations, namely the Catalan and Basque regions with their own distinctive languages. Spain has a vibrant cultural landscape. Some famous Spaniards include Picasso and Gaudi. Gaudi's original and modernistic architecture can be found throughout the city of Barcelona. Renting a bike and uncovering its treasures is a wonderful way to explore this city. Musically, Spain is famous for Flamenco and Spanish guitar. This reveals the passionate soul that belongs to Spain. It also has a unique cuisine that visitors can experience. This includes tapas, paella and exquisite grilled sea food in local markets. Spain also has its own impressive array of wines. The Spaniards not only enjoy life but live it with gusto, perhaps at times risking it through past-times such as bull-fighting.

“Tapas, paella and exquisite grilled sea food.”

Spain is also blessed with nature. It boasts superb beaches, such as in Malaga and Huelva, which attract tourists every year. There are also the stunning peaks of the Pyrenees, where hours can be lost hiking, enjoying their splendour. The Spanish language is also one of the most popular to learn in Europe. Some basic Spanish could help anyone thinking of moving here to live and work.

Teaching Opportunities

The demand for English in Spain is high and there are literally thousands of job opportunities to choose from. This can be confusing at first, particularly if you are a novice teacher with no experience of teaching abroad. There are many jobs in Madrid, Barcelona, Valencia and Seville as well as smaller places outside of these centres. In the same vein, there is also every kind of learner; from young learners and teens to adults and business professionals.

Jobs are often advertised on EFL forums, but generally offer no benefits to teachers, such as reimbursed airfare, accommodation or salary bonuses. Therefore, some of the better jobs can be found directly in the country. Whichever option you choose, choosing a job online or looking in the country, you will need to have some savings to see you through the first 4-6 weeks. This will also include rent money. It is advised that teachers begin looking for opportunities in July and early August to secure a job for the start of the year in September. There are also summer camps for those who might like to see if Spain suits them. You need to begin applying in May for these. Employers in Spain also favour EU nationals, due to the strict immigration laws.

Teaching English in Sri Lanka

ENDLESS BEACHES, TIMELESS RUINS, WELCOMING PEOPLE, OODLES OF ELEPHANTS

Country Summary

Sri Lanka is perhaps most famous for its tea plantations (it was previously known as Ceylon) for its turbulent history, but it has so much more. This country has beautiful, unspoilt scenery, amazing wildlife and intriguing historical sites. Lose yourself trekking through spice gardens, tropical forests and mountains, or lazing on pristine white beaches. Take a trip back in time by wandering through ancient temples, castles and ruined cities. Walk on the wild side and visit game reserves to catch sight of elephants, leopards and sloth bears.

This natural beauty hides the fact that this country has one of the fastest-growing economies. It is a development hub but based on the teachings of Buddhism and Hinduism and maintaining a religious and spiritual foundation. The capital of Colombo manages to maintain its colonial roots in its architecture alongside new hotel complexes and stylish seafront restaurants, galleries and museums. Cultural festivals are still common and usually include dancing and drumming, while those looking for a more peaceful experience should visit one of the many meditation and yoga retreats.

Teaching Opportunities

Sinhala and Tamil are the languages most widely spoken but Sri Lanka is realising the benefits of learning English and the growing tourism industry means that there are an increasing number of teaching opportunities. The government is using English as a means of promoting communication between the different ethnic groups, which has placed great importance on the learning of English.

You are most likely to find a position in the capital city of Colombo, though even here there are not many language schools. It would be best to try find a job in a private international school – unless you would like to volunteer. While schools may help you with accommodation, teaching in Sri Lanka is not for financial gain, but more for the opportunity to gain teaching experience in such a vibrant, exotic destination.

Teaching English in Sweden

HIKING, CAMPING, CYCLING, SKIING, BOATING, FISHING ARE ALL MAJOR SWEDISH PASTIMES

Country Summary

Home to Vikings, smorgasbord and Abba, Sweden is the third-largest country in the EU but the one with the lowest population. It's known as the Land of the Midnight Sun because from late May to mid-July the sun never sets. If you are familiar with the Millennium Trilogy films, based on the bestseller novels by Stieg Larsson, then you will recognise the vast, snowy landscapes of Sweden, the many city islands and the thick pine forests.

“Frozen wastelands, cosy cottages, virgin forest, rocky islands, reindeer herders and Viking lore.”

While the number of daylight hours varies greatly at different times of the year (from 6 to 18 hours), Sweden is much warmer than other countries at this latitude and so outdoor activities are popular. In winter you can go skiing, skating and bear watching, while in summer you can stay in a cabin in the mountains and go for hikes with the possibility of not seeing another person for days.

If you're looking to spend your money, Stockholm and Gothenburg are the places to go for shopping and nightlife. If you're interested in gastronomy, Sweden is home to some of Northern Europe's (and the world's) best restaurants, or you can decide to spend your hard-earned Kroner staying in the Ice Hotel in Lapland.

Teaching Opportunities

There isn't a high demand for English lessons in Sweden, as the quality of English is high: almost 90% of the population can reportedly speak English. This is definitely a destination that is better suited to those with some experience. Having said that, you should be able to find jobs in the bigger cities of Stockholm, Gothenburg and Malmo.

The Folkuniversitetet system (literally: community university) provides English lessons to Swedes, and many people would rather make use of this system than pay more for private lessons. This is where you will want to find a position as this is where most foreign teachers are employed. As another option, there are a few private language schools that provide lessons, mostly for professionals.

Travel Information

VACCINES:

Recommended: Diphtheria, Tetanus, Polio and Measles.

WEATHER:

Most of Sweden has a temperate climate, with four distinct seasons and mild temperatures throughout the year. Temperatures in July average 13°C to 17°C. February is usually the coldest month, with average temperatures from -22°C to -3°C. In northern Sweden, winter temperatures often drop to -30°C, sometimes even lower.

TRANSPORTATION:

Transportation in Sweden is by car, bus, train, tram, boat or aeroplane. Swedes use their public transportation frequently.

Teaching English in Switzerland

IT'S ALSO SPECTACULARLY BEAUTIFUL WITH LAKES AND MOUNTAINS EVERYWHERE YOU GO

Country Summary

Cheese lover? Chocoholic? Then welcome to Switzerland: a country deservedly famous for its many culinary specialities. Bordered by France, Italy, Germany and Austria, it's perfectly situated – a gateway to the rest of Western Europe.

“Look past the silk-smooth chocolate, cuckoo clocks and yodelling.”

The first stop for most visitors is Geneva – a very international and cultural city – or Zurich – a big, cosmopolitan city with a thriving nightlife. Another favourite is Lausanne, on the shores of Lake Geneva, known as the Swiss wine country, which has amazing views of the Swiss and French Alps. For the more sports-oriented, Interlaken is a must for its bungee jumping, canyoning and skydiving. Hiking is, of course, a popular activity to enjoy the scenery of the mountains – especially the iconic Matterhorn. Railway fans can take many different railway journeys on a number of scenic routes through the mountains.

On the downside, Switzerland is a budgeter's nightmare with an extremely high cost of living, so don't expect to be living like a king. Zurich and Geneva are known to be especially expensive and are often ranked as the most expensive cities in the world. At the same time, Switzerland is a very safe, organised and beautiful country so as long as you're expecting the expense, it shouldn't come as a nasty surprise.

Teaching Opportunities

Switzerland is a linguistic marvel, with residents speaking either French, German, Italian or Romansh. English is becoming more popular and was recently introduced as a compulsory subject in schools. Consequently, there are teaching opportunities to be found in Switzerland, though the salary is probably not what you would hope for in an expensive country like this.

You're also likely to find work in a private language school in Zurich, Geneva, Basel or Bern. These positions will be paid an hourly rate and your working hours may be split into shifts. Switzerland is also known for its hotel schools which prepare their students for the hospitality industry. These schools have a compulsory English element to their curriculum so it's a good idea to look for employment here.

Benefits May Include	No specific benefits

Travel Information

Recommended: Hepatitis A, Rabies, Influenza.

WEATHER:

The Swiss climate is continental in the plateau, Alpine in the mountains, and more temperate in the Canton of Ticino. Summers are generally warm with average temperatures of 24°C degrees; but in the winter, it can reach -5°C and lower in the Alps.

TRANSPORTATION:

Switzerland's public transport network is safe and efficient. Trains, trams, buses and boats cover the entire country. There are also extensive cycling routes.

CURRENCY: Swiss Franc

FOOD TO TRY:

Cheese fondue: Melted cheese with bread cubes.

Raclette: Melted cheese served with "Gschwelkti" (jacket potatoes), cocktail gherkins and onions as well as pickled fruit.

Älplermagronen: A kind of gratin with potatoes, macaroni, cheese, cream and onions.

Rösti - A flat, hot cake made of grated, cooked jacket or raw potatoes and fried in hot butter.

Swiss chocolate.

Swiss cheese.

Teaching English in Taiwan

SANDY BEACHES, TROPICAL FORESTS, VOLCANIC MOUNTAINS

Country Summary

Taiwan is a small, beautiful island that is densely populated. It has sandy beaches, tropical forests, volcanic mountains and the Yushun National Park. It is also famous for its butterflies. Politically, the island is or is not a part of the Republic of China depending on which political perspective you take. Although China used to hold more power and influence, in the last decade mainland China has been slowly losing its grip on Taiwan. This has allowed for a pro-independence stance.

“Learners are highly motivated, open to learning and fun.”

In the past, Taiwan has been ruled by the Dutch, the Spanish and the Japanese. This would explain some of the Japanese influences found in its cuisine. There is also a strong aboriginal influence found in Taiwanese culture, art and literature. Unlike mainland China, religion and religious practices are observed here. Buddhism, Confucianism and Taoism are all part of daily life. The biggest challenge for anyone thinking of working here is getting to grips with Mandarin Chinese. This pictorial script has about 6,000 characters, which makes it hard to read, and might be shocking at first if you have never had experience of learning a non-roman script.

Teaching Opportunities

There are many teaching possibilities in the capital city of Taipei for both new and experienced teachers, but you need to have a bachelor's degree. Those holding a level 5 TEFL certificate or higher will have a better chance at finding higher paid work. In order to obtain a work visa, it is important that you can show you have a job with at least a minimum of 20 hours per week.

Many positions are not advertised online, which means that you need to be in the country to secure some positions. Taiwanese employers prefer to meet you face-to-face. This will mean that you will need to come to Taiwan with some savings while you look. If you have arrived in Taiwan on a tourist visa, it is possible to convert it to a work visa. However, you will need to leave the country during this process and visit another country while you wait for the process to be completed. With the low cost of living, it will also be possible to save.

There are many opportunities to teach children, university students and business executives, or adults in both public and private institutions, also commonly known as buxibans. The best time to apply for work is either in summer, or in February after the Chinese New Year. Learners are highly motivated, open to learning and fun.

Teaching English in Tanzania

WILDLIFE, BEACHES, FRIENDLY PEOPLE, FASCINATING CULTURE

Country Summary

Home to Mount Kilimanjaro, Tanzania has been the destination of choice for intrepid travellers for decades. There aren't many countries in the world where you can witness the great wildebeest migration on the Serengeti and this is just one of many attractions Tanzania has to offer – from diverse flora and fauna to beach holidays and extreme sports, Tanzania has something to offer everyone.

“Tanzania is most famous for Zanzibar, an archipelago of deserted islands and sandbars.”

For the culture vultures, with over 120 unique tribes, there are many cultural programmes run by local villages to allow tourists a glimpse into their traditional way of life. In terms of beaches, Tanzania is most famous for Zanzibar, an archipelago of deserted islands and sandbars, which offer superb opportunities for swimming, snorkelling and diving. Of course, there are any number of safari destinations within the country, the most romantic being a balloon safari over the Serengeti. Then, to experience something other than nature, take a walk around one of Tanzania's many historical towns, making sure to visit their bustling markets and sample some traditional nyama choma – barbecued goat, fish or chicken with bananas.

Teaching Opportunities

Unlike many other African countries, there are numerous teaching positions for EFL teachers in Tanzania, both voluntary and paid. It is even possible to volunteer with the Tanzanian Ministry of Education. The population of Tanzania is extremely young so there is a movement from the government to put education programmes in place to educate the youth, resulting in a need for English teachers.

The most popular place to teach is Dar es Salaam, but TEFL teachers are also in demand in rural areas and in beach towns. Volunteer positions will usually place you in local schools while paid positions will entail teaching in private academies and language schools.

Teaching English in Thailand

THE LAND OF SMILES

Country Summary

Thailand is known as the Land of Sunshine, due to its warm tropical climate. It also has many places to explore. These include Bangkok, the beaches of Phuket and Hua Hin, deep jungles and its floating markets. Visitors to this country can also savour the intricate wood carvings of elephants and other wildlife, and the Buddhist temples. Monks, in their brightly coloured orange gowns, are a common sight in Bangkok, weaving their way in and out of the crowds.

“Thailand is an excellent place for teachers, due to the friendly students and slower pace of life.”

Thailand is also known as the Land of Smiles, with some of the friendliest inhabitants on earth. Despite Thai people staring at you because of your facial features, it will not seem as uncomfortable as it might if the same thing were to happen to you in Japan. The reason for this is because the people in this country, despite their open curiosity, reach out and include you in their lives, rather than keep you at a distance. The slow pace of the country also offers welcome relief from the faster-paced lifestyle of other nations in the region. The Thai language, with its delicate script curving across the page, and its tones, can offer a challenge to the uninitiated.

Teaching Opportunities

Due to its popularity, Thailand is a competitive place to find a job, but it also means that there are plenty of opportunities for those who have a 3-year degree. It has become harder and harder to get a work visa in this country without a degree, and would mean working illegally on a tourist visa. This degree requirement is sometimes overlooked if you can demonstrate to the authorities that you have years of teaching experience. Thailand, however, due to the friendly students and slower pace is an excellent place for teachers who are newly certified, to learn and hone their teaching skills.

It is possible to apply for a job outside of the country. This means that, generally, you are more likely to be given assistance with your visa, airfare and accommodation. The more qualifications and experience you have, the more likely you are to receive a good salary with a solid benefits package. Teaching jobs are available in private language schools, state schools and universities. Jobs are generally located in Bangkok and Chang Mai. Surat Thani is also another possibility. With the tourism sector booming in Thailand, there are also new opportunities opening up in hotels for in-house TEFL teachers, where you might also be asked to give basic business courses.

Teaching English in Togo

DRAMATIC BACKDROPS, TRADITIONAL VILLAGES AND BEACHES

Country Summary

Togo is a thin strip of a country on the west Coast of Africa. With tranquil beaches, vibrant markets and friendly people, it was once considered the pearl of West Africa. For such a small country, Togo has a surprising number of attractions.

“Due to the economy and industry, there is a demand for English in the country.”

The capital of Lomè has both pristine beaches and a thumping nightlife, to the east are colonial towns with their chaotic and colourful markets, inland villages can be found hidden in the forests of the cocoa triangle while in the north, traditional villages showcase the laid-back lifestyle of rural Africa.

Living in Togo is not for the faint-hearted, though. There is very little infrastructure, unreliable public transport and many places don't have electricity or running water so while living in Togo may be challenging, it'll definitely be rewarding.

Teaching Opportunities

There are many volunteer opportunities in Togo, most of them in the capital of Lomè. School facilities are limited and resources are minimal so come prepared to create your own classroom materials or with ideas to teach creatively. Class sizes are generally large (50+) but the local teachers are friendly and helpful. They speak a mixture of French and Ewe, so a basic knowledge of French would be useful.

While this may not sound like the ideal place to go and teach, Togo will give you an experience like no other. The chances are high that you will be the only foreign teacher in your school and the teaching conditions will only serve to strengthen your teaching skills.

Teaching English in Tunisia

TUNISIA IS FINDING REMNANTS OF THE ROMANS AND MEDITERRANEAN BLISS

Country Summary

Tunisia is a country of both natural and man-made beauty. It boasts gorgeous beaches and the stunningly beautiful Sahara Desert, but also the historical site of Carthage. It is the northernmost country in Africa and gained independence from France in 1956. Its recent history was marred by the Tunisian revolution in 2011 – an intensive campaign of mass resistance caused by high unemployment, inflation, corruption and lack of freedom of speech. It was this revolution which inspired the Arab Spring which swept through the Arab world.

Geographically, Tunisia is a long country so environmental differences naturally change from north to south. The south of the country is desert but it is known to snow in some areas in the north. Generally speaking, the country enjoys a mild Mediterranean climate, perfect for spending afternoons shopping in the souk, wandering the ruins of Carthage, drinking jasmine tea or hanging out at one of the beaches.

Please note: before travelling to Tunisia, check up-to-date travel advisory warnings. As a result of a number of terrorist threats and attacks, a state of emergency has been declared in Tunisia and it may not be safe for tourists. As of the end of 2016, it is unclear when the state of emergency will be lifted.

Teaching Opportunities

The majority of teaching opportunities can be found in Tunis, a cosmopolitan mix of Arab and European cultures with easy access to beaches and the Sahara Desert, or the major tourist destination of Sousse. Jobs can be found in British- or US-run language centres or private universities.

There is a focus on education with the result that Tunisia boasts high literacy rates. Arabic is the official language of Tunisia but French is also widely spoken though not officially recognised – it is used in education, press and business. Tunisians are eager to learn English in order to study abroad or work for international companies – Business and Academic English are popular choices.

A COUNTRY ON TWO CONTINENTS

Country Summary

Turkey, split between Europe and Asia, has an amazing cultural heritage.

This is symbolised in the former capital of Turkey, Istanbul. Looking at the architecture from a boat on the Bosphorus, it is evident that so many civilisations have crossed these shores. The Venetians, the Byzantines, the Romans and the Greeks have all left their mark here as well as Turkey's Sultans. Side by side sits Aya Sofia, once a church and a mosque (now a museum) and the blue mosque on the same skyline. Throughout the country, there is also a rich past legacy. The old city of Troy, the ancient library of Ephesus, and Nimrod in the east are to name just a few. Mount Ararat of biblical fame and the southern beach region of Olu Deniz have breath-taking natural scenery.

“There is a huge demand for EFL in Turkey.”

Although Turkey has a large Muslim population, it is unlike its other Muslim neighbours in the Middle East. While some Turks cover their heads and observe religious practices, other Turks are more secular in their approach, wearing modern dress and drinking alcohol. This is because Turkey is also a secular Republic that was founded in 1923 by Ataturk, who reformed the country using a Western-style model. Subsequently, Turkish people are proud of their country. Turks are also famous for their warm welcome and hospitality. They have a spontaneous spirit, and enjoy sitting down over a glass of Turkish tea or coffee to catch up with each other.

Teaching Opportunities

There is a huge demand for EFL in Turkey. Everyone needs to learn English, either for entrance examinations, international communication, business transactions or even to secure a good job. The main locations in Turkey in which to find EFL jobs are Istanbul, the capital Ankara, Izmir and Bursa. Education in Turkey is a prized and expensive commodity and there are many job opportunities in private language schools, private schools and universities. Contracts generally ask for 20-35 hours of teaching per week. The salary is enough to live comfortably. It is also possible to earn more money from private tuition.

Jobs are regularly advertised online. Teachers must be careful about researching these. Some places will ask you to work on a tourist visa, which means that you will need to do a visa run every three months, to Bulgaria, Greece or the Ukraine. There are other institutions that do not pay on time or at all. Having said this, there are also good jobs for those who have a level 5 TEFL certificate. The first year might not bring you the job you want, but after a year of experience in the country, many quality employers will have openings for you. Many prefer those with experience of teaching in Turkey and who are applying from within the country.

Teaching English in Uganda

SOARING MOUNTAINS, GORILLAS, TERRACED HILLTOPS

Country Summary

Known as the 'Pearl of Africa', Uganda is a landlocked country in Eastern Africa. It gained independence from Britain in 1962 and subsequently endured a turbulent few decades and became known for its high HIV rates. These days Uganda is relatively stable and safe to visit, though it has come under severe criticism for its laws against homosexuality.

“Due to the economy and industry, there is a demand for English in the country.”

Besides its politics, Uganda is famous for its gorillas, being one of the few countries where you can encounter gorillas in their natural habitat – the Mgahinga Gorilla National Park and the Bwindi Impenetrable National Park are home to over half of the world's remaining mountain gorillas. Once you have spent enough time in the jungle you can head over to one of Uganda's many lakes where you can enjoy boat safaris, fishing and birdwatching. And let's not forget that Uganda is home to a number of national parks where you can enjoy a safari without the crowds which visit neighbouring countries.

Teaching Opportunities

English and Swahili are the two official languages of Uganda. Primary education is free but the quality of education has been affected by high student: teacher ratios. This has resulted in a need for teachers but you need a Bachelor's in Education in order to teach in a government or international school. There are, however, many different volunteer programmes to get involved with which don't require you to have any degree qualification. It's also possible to be a private tutor. The majority of jobs can be found in the urban cities of Kampala and Kira.

Teaching English in the United Kingdom

WHERE THE PAST COMES TO LIFE

Country Summary

The UK consists of four distinct countries. To the north is Scotland, in the middle is England, in the west is Wales and, in the north, west away from the mainland is Northern Ireland. The UK has a well-preserved history, from the ancient ruins of Stonehenge to Hadrian's Wall, built by the Romans. It also has historical centres such as Edinburgh, Stratford-Upon-Avon (the birth place of Shakespeare), the popular town of Bath and the palaces built by the Kings and Queens of the country, littered up and down its shores.

The UK people love to walk and go out in nature. There are some stunning areas of natural beauty that have been preserved in the country. This includes Devon and Cornwall in the south west. This region has an idyllic landscape, set on the coast with 400-500-year-old cottages. The Cotswolds and the Lake District and the wild landscape of Wales and Scotland are also well worth exploring. London has its very own character. Apart from the major tourist sites, such as the River Thames, Big Ben, Buckingham Palace and the Tower of London, it also has a vibrant multicultural population. Every culture and country on Earth seem to be represented here.

Teaching Opportunities

The EFL market is in huge demand, with EFL students coming to the country either to live for 6 months or a year, or for a summer camp to learn English. The unique element of working in the UK is that your classes will be multicultural. The learners have a direct motivation to learn and speak English, so that they can communicate with their classmates. For those staying and working in the UK, there are certain areas that are major centres for EFL jobs. These include London, Cambridge, Bath, Bournemouth, Brighton, Hastings, Edinburgh, Exeter and Belfast. There are many opportunities to teach every kind of EFL in the UK from seaside towns like Brighton to big cities like Manchester or university towns like Cambridge.

While there are many private language institutes that will employ teachers, not all of them pay on time or have good working conditions. The route into permanent and secure yearly employment can also be tricky, as the majority of EFL work, outside of some of the big cities, is seasonal. To try to find a year-round job it is essential to begin teaching on one of the summer camps or schools during the summer months. Applications begin as early as April. The job competition is stiff so it will be essential to have a level 5 TEFL certificate.

Teaching English in the United Arab Emirates

INFLUENCES FROM INDIA, MALAYSIA, PHILIPPINES AND THE UK

Country Summary

The UAE is a huge oil-producing country with influences from India, Malaysia, the Philippines and the UK. Subsequently, it is a country of fusion and of contrast. The ultra-modern architecture of Dubai sits side by side with the country's ancient Bedouin culture. The country is currently undertaking a huge investment in infrastructure and construction. The pinnacle of this is the Burj Khalifa, which is the tallest structure in the world. Dubai also has a plethora of premium shopping complexes, beaches where you can wear a bathing suit or shorts, as well as temples. This means that Dubai is more liberal than other cities in the region. However, do not be fooled by the modern appearance. For both men and women reserved clothing and behaviour is expected in public. Those who break the rules, such as with public displays of affection with the opposite sex, can find themselves facing imprisonment or deportation.

“It offers a great standard of living for anyone looking to teach English.”

Abu Dhabi, another region of the UAE, is also more conservative, particularly in how women dress. This means women should not show any shoulder, cleavage or knees. Close to Abu Dhabi is the garden oasis of Al Ain, with parks and the scenic backdrop of the Hajar Mountains.

Teaching Opportunities

Despite the restrictions, the UAE is more liberal than some other countries in the region. It offers a great standard of living for anyone looking to teach English. There is a large demand for English teachers, due to the ever-growing importance of the UAE in the global economy. There are high salaries, no income tax on your earnings and great benefits. These generally include luxury furnished accommodation, health insurance, paid holidays and reimbursed airfare. The high salaries also bring with them high expectations of teachers. Teachers need to have a degree, a level 5 TEFL certificate and experience. There are some limited opportunities for newly qualified teachers.

Contracts are for 35-40 hours of teaching per week. Students are motivated and open to learn, but the pace of learning might be slower than in other regions of the world. The locations where it is possible to find teaching opportunities are Abu Dhabi, Sharjah and Dubai. It is also vitally important that teachers find work before coming to the country, due to the strict work visa regulations. It is possible to find jobs advertised on online forums. EFL opportunities generally have start dates beginning in September and January respectively. This means that due to the lengthy visa-processing time, teachers need to begin applying 4 months in advance.

Teaching English in the United States of America

THIS IS A COUNTRY OF ROAD TRIPS AND GREAT OPEN SKIES

Country Summary

Land of the free, home of the brave, the United States is a gigantic geographical space just waiting to be explored. It's a country of so many different parts you won't know where to start. From the country music of Nashville in the south to the wilderness of Alaska in the north; the sunny climes of California in the west to the skyscrapers of New York in the east, and so much more in between.

“The great American experience: bluegrass and beaches, snow-covered peaks and redwood forests.”

If you're not gambling away your money and partying the night away in Vegas, perhaps you're enjoying the breath-taking views of the Grand Canyon. If you enjoy a little skiing, make your way to Colorado, but if you prefer an island getaway, head to the tropical paradise of Hawaii. Maybe you'd like a taste of the rich and famous and would enjoy a celebrity tour around Hollywood.

In terms of cuisine, the US offers tastes which mirror its melting-pot identity. Burgers and fries, pizza, New York-style baked cheesecake, pretzels, southern fried chicken and biscuits, Starbucks – the United States has whatever your stomach desires.

Teaching Opportunities

While the TEFL market in the US is not as big as Asia or South America, the US is home to a wide range of immigrants. In order to be successful here, a working knowledge of English is a must and for this reason there are loads of language schools dotted around the country to cater for the needs of the immigrant population. As the number of language schools grows, so too does the number of international students coming to these shores for a few weeks or months to improve their English. You are more likely to find these schools in east- or west-coast cities like New York, Boston, Miami or San Francisco.

There are opportunities in the K-12 public school system and community colleges, but these fall under different laws to the private language schools so you are required to have a teaching license, which makes finding a job a bit more complicated. Also, it's such a big country that laws and requirements differ state by state, so perhaps think about where you would like to live and work before finding out the details.

There are various summer camps which take place during the summer months of July and August which are also a good option. It is not easy for non-US residents to work here and employers are not guaranteed to help with visas, so working for a summer on an Exchange visa is a good way to experience the States for a few months.

Teaching English in Uruguay

BIRTHPLACE OF JULES SUPERVIELLE AND MAGDALENA HELGUERA

Country Summary

This nation is one of the smallest countries in South America, with 50% of the population living in the capital, Montevideo. It has some rain throughout the year, but Uruguay is well-known in the region for its high winds since it has no shield from the mountains that grace other neighbouring countries.

“The students in Uruguay are friendly and lively to teach.”

Having said this, Uruguay has lush grasslands with low fertile plains and hills. In the cities, it is possible to see the splendour of Spanish and Portuguese colonial architecture. As with its neighbour Argentina, the main cultural activity in Uruguay is tango. This can be found, along with other cultural pursuits, in the capital Montevideo. Uruguay has a long literary tradition, with writers such as Jules Supervielle and Magdalena Helguera. It also has many festivals. Two of the most important are Desfile de las Llamadas (a parade which is the highlight of the summer carnival) and Uruguayan Independence Day on August 25th. This is celebrated with fireworks and celebrations nationwide.

Uruguay is one of the most stable countries in South America with low crime rates and due to increased trade with North America, it now also has a large export market.

Teaching Opportunities

For many, Uruguay is seen more as a short-term option than one for a long-term TEFL career. The reason for this is that there are only limited opportunities for well-paid jobs. This means that a level 5 TEFL certificate will be required. The students in Uruguay are friendly and lively to teach, and classes are available for all age ranges and walks of life. This includes children as well as business professionals.

The cost of living in Uruguay is low, but this also means that the salaries are low. This can become problematic when you need to teach at several sites, but your travel expenses are generally not reimbursed by your employer. There is also the danger that in some institutions they will insist that you are on call from 8 a.m. – 8 p.m., which is an unreasonable request if you are not being compensated for these overtime hours. It is also extremely difficult to secure a job from outside the country meaning that you will need to pay for your own flight to the country, and have enough savings for the first 4-6 weeks of your time in the country. Teaching in Uruguay is great if you want to gain experience, or to have a job that allows you to explore a different culture.

Teaching English in Vietnam

A LAND OF EXCEPTIONAL BEAUTY AND EXQUISITE CUISINE

Country Summary

A land of exceptional beauty and exquisite cuisine embodies Vietnam. From the rice field terraces, the lush, green mountains, the national parks and breath-taking coastlines to the capital city of Hanoi, Vietnam will inspire and amaze you. Influenced by Hinduism and India, infused with Chinese culture from the North, mixed with a French influence evidenced in Hanoi, along with 50 or so traditional tribes, Vietnam has its own distinct character.

“The Vietnamese are fun-loving and direct.”

Apart from exploring the country, many travellers visit Hoi An to have clothes expertly tailored in any design that they wish, at ridiculously reasonable prices. The Vietnamese are fun-loving and direct. Many TEFL teachers, however, report that the South is friendlier towards foreigners than the Northern parts of Vietnam, as a result of the Vietnam War.

Teaching Opportunities

Vietnam has emerged in the past years as a country whose growing tourism industry, along with manufacturing and its hi-tech IT business, means that there are many opportunities for those wishing to teach English. Considering this economic growth, it is not surprising to find that students are eager to learn, and to develop their English skills. They are also extremely pleasant to teach. Most TEFL jobs are centred in Hanoi, Ho Chi Minh or the port city of Da Nang. There are job opportunities in both the private and the public sectors, and a growing demand for business English. Teachers wishing to work in state schools need to apply 2-3 months before the start of the school year, which begins in August.

Most teaching contracts are 20-30 hours per week. The cost of living is still relatively cheap, and the salary allows you to live comfortably in the country. Compared with some other countries in South East Asia, it is rare in Vietnam to find extra benefits attached to a teaching contract. Some of the better-paid jobs might offer benefit packages. In real terms, this means that you will be responsible for your own costs in terms of flights, accommodation, visa fees and health insurance. You will need to arrive in Vietnam with enough money to cover your costs for 2 months. By law, your employer is supposed to cover your visa fees. Many places, however, make you pay up front to guarantee that you will complete the contract. This is usually reimbursed at the end of your contract. You are also required to submit a criminal records check and health certificate from your own country.

Teaching English in Zambia

WHERE WILDLIFE LOOMS LARGE AND WILD SUNSETS

Country Summary

One of the safest countries in the world, Zambia offers natural beauty on an unparalleled level. The home of Victoria Falls and the walking safari, Zambia is a must-visit destination for adventurers who love the great outdoors and getting close to nature.

Walking safaris and bush-camping ensure that you can get up close and personal to the wildlife here and you can even go canoeing on the Zambezi alongside crocodiles, elephants and hippos. The sheer size of Zambia means that it can take a while to travel between destinations but this also means that you are likely to experience every safari-goers dream and find yourself alone in a vast wilderness with nothing but the landscape and wildlife for company.

And of course, no visit to Zambia would be complete without a trip to Vic Falls, the largest waterfall on the planet. Situated on the border with Zambia and Zimbabwe, Vic Falls is also known as 'the Smoke that Thunders' and is one of the Seven Natural Wonders of the World.

“A visit to Zambia isn’t complete without a trip to Vic Falls, the largest waterfall on the planet.”

Teaching Opportunities

English is the official language of Zambia and it is used to conduct business and is the medium of instruction in schools, but Nyanja and Bemba are also widely spoken, as well as other indigenous languages. In fact, with more than 70 ethnic groups, a total of 73 languages are spoken in Zambia.

Though there are plenty of teaching positions available in Zambia, the majority of these are for teachers with a degree in Education. There is still a demand for EFL teachers but this is usually on a volunteer basis. Private schools usually offer housing and volunteer positions offer shared accommodation. Most positions, regardless of whether they are paid or volunteer, are in the capital Lusaka.
